3,000-4,000 Believed Dead In Avalanche

Recovery of Bodies Begins; Weather Hampers Operation

LIMA, Peru (AP)—Rescue planes flew into the Andes Valley of Hyayas 200 miles north of Lima today, where 3,000 to 4,000 persons are feared dead under an avalanche of ice, snow, rock and mud. The disaster virtually wiped out two villages and 14 settlements in eight minutes.

Before darkness Thursday, 50 bodies had been recovered. A doctor back from the stricken area said rescuers would have little to do but recover the dead — "there are no injured."

Only two planes were able to fly into Caraz, about 20 miles north of the disaster area, before dense fog and bad weather set in Thursday. But this morning, planes began a shuttle to carry in doctors, nurses, medicines, food and clothing for victims of Wednesday's tragedy.

The exact number of dead may never be known. Roberto Thorndike, chairman of the Peruvian Red Cross, said initial estimates by representatives in the area put the number of missing at 2,300. U.S. Ambassador James Loeb, who flew over the area, reported estimates of 4,000 missing and presumed dead.

The village of Ranrahira and 450 of its 500 people were buried under a mass of muck a mile wide and nowhere less than 12 feet deep.

The village of Huarascucho, said to have a larger population than Ranrahira, also was reported to have disappeared under the huge slide. Officials said 14 smaller settlements were destroyed, and that none of the residents of seven of them had been found alive.

More than 7,000 persons lived in the ranching and mining valley, 9,000 feet up with the snowtopped peaks of the Cordillera Blanca looking down on them.

Republicans Open Nat'l Meet Today

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Predictions of glowing prospects in elections this year and a warning that failure could carry over to 1964 marked today's opening of the Republican National Committee's meeting to map campaign strategy.

GOP National Chairman William E. Miller said he believes 1962 will see big Republican victories in congressional and state elections.

Miller, a New York Congressman, and Rep. Robert Wilson of California, chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, were opening session speakers for the meeting.

A special investigating committee issued a report emphasizing that a bigger share of labor votes and more strength in minority groups are vital if Republicans are to carry big cities—and win presidential elections.

Miller, arriving Thursday night outlined Republican aims to a news conference. He also criticized President Kennedy's State of the Union Message to Congress saying some powers sought by Kennedy could become political weapons.

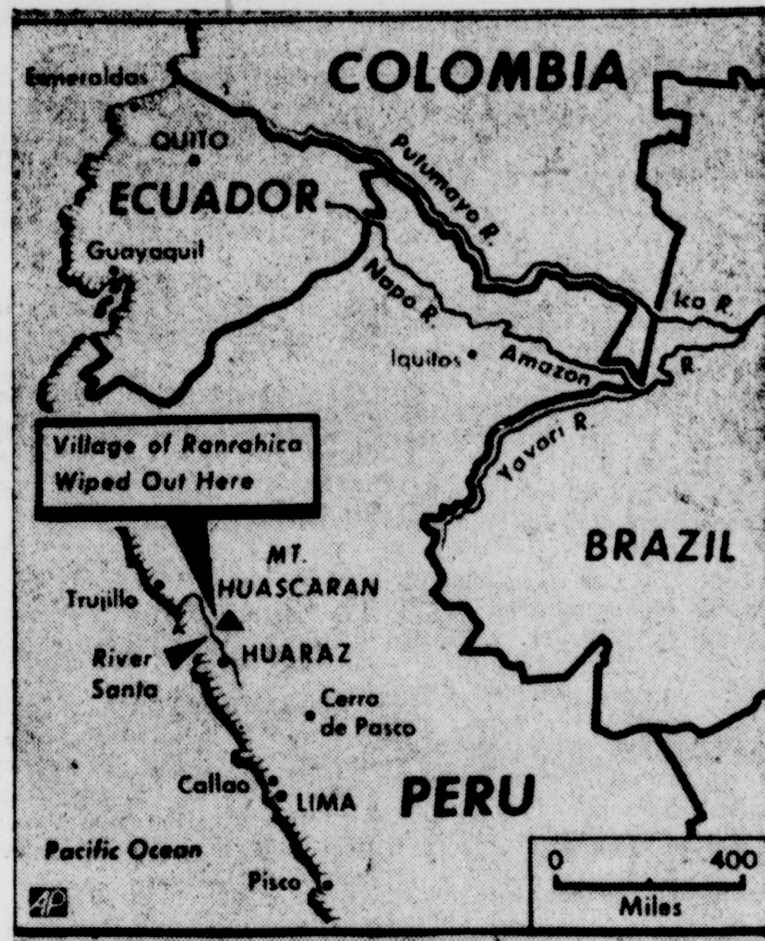

Although predicting big 1962 election victories, he told newsmen that failure would mean Republicans won't have much of a chance for victory in the 1964 presidential election.

He said Republicans can win this year because: The party in control usually loses in an off-election year; reapportionment resulting from the 1960 census will help the GOP; the GOP is gaining strength in the South; shifts in population have helped the party in states like Florida.

Miller opposed President Kennedy's request for power to lower income taxes at his discretion and for standby authority to initiate public works programs.

He called these "dangerous weapons in the hands of any president," saying they could be abused for political purposes.

The special committee's report culminated eight months of study.

On Hiring Idle

Industrial Report Has Caution Note

WASHINGTON (AP)—Leading industrialists and labor union leaders have jointly advised President Kennedy that, while modernizing American industry must continue, the government and employers must take care of workers made idle.

The report—the first one filed by Kennedy's 21-man Labor-Management Advisory Committee—called for a "course of action which will encourage essential progress in the form of automation and technological change, while meeting at the same time the social consequences such change creates."

The recommendations, representing a remarkable meeting of the minds in a normally contentious group, were received by Kennedy at the White House Thursday in an hour-long conference with his advisers.

Praising the report, Kennedy said: "We must take advantage of every opportunity for technological development. But we cannot disregard the human values involved. Your recommendations properly recognize both sides of this problem."

The automation report, originally drafted by President Clark Kerr of the University of California, one of the public members of the group, called for a whole series of measures by the government and employers to ease the plight of workers and their families hard hit by automation.

Nobody quarreled with the need for making industry steadily more efficient; instead it was urged that this process continue in order to improve economic growth and the U.S. position in world markets.

Many of the methods suggested to ease the human burden of automation quite closely resembled proposals Kennedy is urging on the newly convened Congress—such as power to reduce taxes in times of high unemployment, to train displaced workers in new skills, and to pay costs of idled workers to relocate into other areas.

Army Lets Contract

Fall out Shelter Surveys Planned In Area Counties

Colonel Alfred J. D'Arezzo, District Engineer, U. S. Army Engineer District, St. Louis, and Dean Lupkey, Civil Defense Director for the State of Missouri, have jointly announced that the firm of Prichard and Company, Inc., of Independence, has been given a contract with the U. S. Army Engineer District, St. Louis, to do field work in the Fallout Shelter Survey Program. This is the second contract for such work and involves the counties of Bates, Benton, Cass, Cedar, Cooper, Henry, Hickory, Johnson, Lafayette, Moniteau, Morgan, Pettis, Saline, St. Clair, and Vernon in the state of Missouri.

Crowley indicated that he would plan to begin the survey within the next week or ten days and that cities and towns within the counties named can expect representatives of his firm to call and identify themselves within the area. State Civil Defense Director Lupkey said in almost every community there are believed to be buildings and structures which can provide adequate shelter from the effects of radioactive fallout in the event such shelter should ever be needed.

Two Groups Will Decide Fate of Plans

Kennedy Confers With Chairmen Of Committees

WASHINGTON (AP)—The success or failure of much of President Kennedy's 1962 legislative program rests largely in the hands of two House committees headed by conservative Southern Democrats.

If these two groups, the rules committee and the ways and means committee, fail to act, the house itself may never get a chance to vote on the proposals Kennedy submitted to Congress Thursday in his State of the Union Message.

Within the past week, the President has conferred privately and separately at the White House with both chairmen, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas, head of the ways and means committee, and Rep. Howard W. Smith of Virginia, top man on the rules committee.

Neither would comment on their conversations but it is a safe assumption Kennedy did not summon them merely to vass the time of day.

Smith's committee has no original jurisdiction over legislation. But it can, and often does, bottle up bills approved by other committees. It is in effect a traffic cop, controlling the flow of legislation from legislative committees to the House floor. It is composed of 10 Democrats and five Republicans but the real lineup usually is eight liberals and seven conservatives.

It was the rules committee which last year refused to let the House vote on the Senate-passed Kennedy-backed general school aid bill.

The ways and means committee has initial jurisdiction over bills dealing with taxes, Social Security and tariffs, among other things. It is composed of 15 Democrats and 10 Republicans, with the over-all majority on the conservative side.

Last year, the committee declined to approve the President's request for a medical care bill under the Social Security system, a request he renewed Thursday. The most support the measure received in several committee ballots was nine favorable votes.

Mills opposed the health insurance bill last year, and Smith led the fight against the school bill. There is no reason to believe that either man has changed his position.

Kennedy's congressional leaders represent the President as being ready to exert all possible pressure to get House action on his program, regardless of what happens to bills once they reach the floor. He doesn't want them bottled up in committees.

The record of House action or inaction on the Kennedy program will may be the "bible" in next November's elections in which all 435 seats in the House will be at stake.

Korean Engineer Spends 2 Days At MoPac Shops

Bong Kyn Pyun, young Korean assistant electrical engineer for the Korean National Railway, left Friday morning for the Atlantic coastline, after spending two days in Sedalia at the Missouri Pacific Shops.

Pyun has been in this country for the past four months studying diesel engines and passenger cars, that he might see the operations of such on the railroads in the United States and take back ideas to Korea.

The Korean National Railway, he stated is 2,000 miles in length, and the equipment is similar but there all work is done by hand, where here it is done by machinery. For the past three weeks he has been studying the Missouri Pacific which he termed as a wonderful railroad.

After graduating from high school in Seoul, which is his home, he went to work for the Korean National Railway. That was 12 years ago and has worked his way up to assistant electrical engineer. He is married and has two children.

Chilly Reaction to Kennedy Income Tax-Cutting Powers

Super Saturn Has More Power

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—The space agency, leap-frogging over three concepts of the Saturn rocket, has decided on a super Saturn with far more power than any rocket the Free World has ever known.

The first stage, or lift-off booster, will have five engines developing a total thrust of 1.7 million pounds of thrust. That compares with the 1.5 million pounds of thrust built into the Saturn first stage which was launched at Cape Canaveral, Fla., last November.

And the huge rocket will be capable of carrying a payload of about 110 tons, twice the normal maximum load of an ordinary railroad box car.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Marshall Space Flight Center here announced Thursday that a decision had been made on the five-engine cluster for the first and second stages of the advanced Saturn. The third stage will carry a single engine.

Two stages will be used for earth-escape missions. Earth orbital trips for three men are to be accomplished with the present Saturn, the C1.

The advanced Saturn, expected to be ready for launching in 1965, will be used first to send a three-man craft into orbit around the moon and back to earth. Later work for it will include a manned landing on the moon and the return trip to earth.

In deciding on this type of advanced Saturn, NASA bypassed three concepts—the C2, C3 and C4. Each was more powerful in concept than the preceding number but none would have been as powerful as the one decided on.

Under the plan, reported to have received the approval of President Kennedy, some posts, including those at the head of several technical services, would be abolished. The importance of some others would be lessened.

The reorganization plan for the Army apparently relates directly to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's high interest in re-vamping management of the whole Pentagon establishment.

The program will go to Congress. There committees will ask questions of witnesses. The questions opposed to the program to those opposed to the program t speak up.

The Army Navy Air Force Journal said today that Gen. George H. Decker, Army chief of staff, had called in some dissatisfied officers and told them they had had their opportunity to register objections while the plan was being formulated and that now they are expected to support it.

But, said the Journal, one of those expected to express his views if called before Capitol Hill committees is Lt. Gen. John H. Hinrichs, chief of ordnance. He would be one of the abolished offices.

Check Death Of Couple At Kingston

KINGSTON, Mo. (AP)—An inquest was called today in the strange deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Grove, whose frozen bodies were found in their farm home near Kingston.

Apparently they suffocated a week ago, about the time an explosion of fumes from the gas furnace flashed through their house.

Their bodies, and those of two dogs, were found Thursday after the Missouri Highway Department cleared the road into the farm, blocked by snow since last Friday's blizzard.

Investigators pieced together the story of what must have happened.

Acquaintances saw Mr. and Mrs. Grove a week ago Thursday in Polo, Mo.

Their son, Floyd Grove of Excelsior Springs, Mo., tried to call them Friday but got no answer. He made several futile calls.

A Friday morning newspaper from last week had not been picked up.

The interior of the house was covered with soot.

Grove's body was found in the bathroom, his wife's on a bed.

A screen covered the chimney which carried off fumes from the gas furnace. It apparently was installed in the summer to keep birds put of the chimney. The screen was clogged by soot.

Floyd Grove attempted to reach the house Thursday morning but was turned back by the snow drifts until he got help from a highway department crew.

Grove was 60, Mrs. Grove 42. Their home is about four miles southeast of Kingston on Yankee Ridge Road in Caldwell County, about 30 miles northeast of Excelsior Springs.

Temperatures have gone as low as 10 below zero since the onset of the blizzard and hovered most of the time between zero and 10 above.

Sukarno Calls Off 'Copter Ceremony

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—President Sukarno at the last minute today called off the formal presentation of a luxury helicopter given him by President Kennedy.

Sukarno's press secretary told newsmen a few minutes before the ceremony was to start that it had been canceled "because the president has great pressure of work."

Some Representatives Won't Discuss Matter

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's request for standby powers to cut income taxes in a recession got a chill-to-frigid reaction today from key congressional leaders.

Some House Ways and Means Committee Democrats, who did not want to be quoted by name, indicated they had no plans to take up the measure, which would involve a reduction of up to 25 per cent in first bracket rates during a recession. The committee would have to originate the legislation.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., whose finance committee would have to consider it in the Senate, blasted the plan as unconstitutional. Many Republicans assailed it.

The tax request, to be spelled out by the President Jan. 22 in his economic report to Congress, was by far the most controversial of his proposals aimed at keeping the economy moving upward. Other proposals dealt with the problems of hard-core unemployment and fighting inflation in boom times.

Several of these proposals are well advanced in Congress and seem likely to reach Kennedy's desk before Congress shuts up shop.

Last year the proposal got the endorsement of a blue-ribbon commission on money and credit containing business members and financed by the Ford Foundation.

But it goes against the grain of most House members and senators who work on tax legislation. They say it would infringe heavily on one of the most cherished prerogatives of Congress—control of the revenues.

Some liberals who tend to favor (Please turn to page 5 column 8)

Jefferson City (AP)—A Democratic leader in the Missouri House of Representatives asked Gov. John M. Dalton today to include recommendations that the old blue laws be modernized if he decides to call a special session.

Rep. James G. Trimble, D-Clay County, majority floor leader in the House, said "the people of Missouri do not want to be law-breakers; but as long as the statutes are unintelligible, then they are faced with the danger of unintentionally committing criminal acts."

Trimble said a revision of the 136-year-old law against Sunday sales of non-essential services and goods should not alone be basis for a special session. But if one is called the revision should be included, he said.

Last December the Missouri Supreme Court upheld constitutionality of the law and then said: "It would seem to be time to modernize our Sunday statutes since they contain some terms applicable to conditions in 1826 (when the law was passed) . . . rather than to the present time."

"Certainly a revision now could give a better treatment and better standards for modern conditions."

In a letter to the governor, Trimble said modernization of the Sunday sales laws should be given priority in Dalton's next message to the legislature. Unless a special session is called that would be at the opening of the 1963 session, next January.

Trimble said "companion statutes (to the blue laws) forbidding recreational activities on Sunday have not been enforced yet, but if they are, it will be a big setback to our state's efforts to attract tourists and industry to Missouri."

Atty. Gen. Thomas F. Eagleton has scheduled a meeting here with county prosecuting attorneys Saturday. Eagleton plans to give the prosecutors his ideas about what articles should be considered non-essential and so not to be sold on Sunday. The law specifically bars Sunday sale of any articles but "medicines, provisions and other articles of immediate necessity."

Earlier this week, Eagleton won the promise of Government Employees Mart not to operate its discount stores in the Kansas City and St. Louis areas on Sunday until the law is changed by the state legislature or the federal courts have ruled Missouri's blue laws are unconstitutional.

Missing Witness Back In State

Ronald Lee Christian, a "missing witness" in the Gordon Building arson attempt, has voluntarily returned to Missouri. Christian returned to Marshall about midnight last night accompanied by Deputy Walter Wade of the Saline County Sheriff's office.

This morning Sheriff Emmett Fairfax, Deputy Jack Couts and Pettis County prosecuting attorney J. R. Fritz went to Marshall to return Christian to Sedalia.

Christian is a state's witness in the case, which is scheduled to be heard in Saline County Circuit Court in Marshall Feb. 28. He had apparently disappeared about one week ago, and a federal warrant was issued for his arrest. He was found working in Chicago and living with his sister.

Christian volunteered to come back to Missouri after Wade arrived in Chicago to pick him up.

Church Gets Money From Asian People

By JULES LOH
AP Staff Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — In a reversal of missionary giving, Southeast Asian Christians have sent a gift of $1,000 to a church situated in the heart of this capital of affluence.

If the gift itself seems unusual, the church that received it may appear even more so.

"Our activities are related to the culture around us," said its pastor, the Rev. Howard Moody, and that culture is well known. Judson Memorial Church is located in Greenwich Village, haven of the unorthodox.

The pastor admits, in the parlance of his congregation, that "some of our critics consider us way out."

In addition to a place of worship, Judson Memorial Church also has an art gallery where disappointed painters can display their unwanted work; a pool hall; a teen-age center equipped with everything from wood-carving tools to bongo drums; a clinic where former dope addicts congregate to discuss, as the pastor put it, "how to keep off the stuff"; a poet's theater where struggling writers of verse drama receive mutual encouragement; a dormitory inhabited half by American college students and half by foreign students, who conduct bull sessions on their conflicting ideologies; plus other similarly unusual features, including the church's own literary journal.

"Our church is oriented basically for those who aren't members of it," explained the Rev. Mr. Moody, 40, an intellectual who can discuss Christianity—or poetry—with his flock in their own swinging language.

As he jokingly explained the makeup of his congregation, "we have 85 card-carrying members and about 300 or 400 fellow travelers." (The average age of the 85 regulars, incidentally, is 28.)

About 75 to 100 teen-agers a week drop by the church where they find, in the pastor's words, "a nonthreatening atmosphere."

"We don't have the usual settlement-house type of operation based on a preconceived program in which a youth has to fit," he said. Here, he just fits where he happens to fit, if he fits at all."

Judson Memorial Church is affiliated with both the American Baptist Convention and the United Church of Christ, and the Rev. Mr. Moody is an ordained minister of both denominations. All church activities, however, are strictly nonsectarian.

The pastor is at a loss to explain how the East Asia Christian Conference, donor of the $1,000, heard of his church. He suggests "perhaps one of my friends in the World Council of Churches told them about us."

The money was collected by women in India, Pakistan, Iran, Thailand, Korea and other countries. They belong to the Fellowship of the Least Coin, an organization inspired by the Gospel parable of the widow's mite.

Each member donates the least valuable coin of her nation once a year to a fund which is administered by the East Asia Christian Conference—a group similar in makeup to America's National Council of Churches. The conference, in turn, contributes yearly to some church project in every continent of the world.

College On A Postage Stamp

In a few years there will be students going to college on a postage stamp. Some parents with foresight or an interest in stamp collecting bought United Nations stamps ten years ago and have used them to pay their children's tuition fees. If they collected one copy of each stamp issued since October 24, 1951, it would have cost less than ten dollars. The catalogue value for these stamps now would be seventy-five dollars. If they had invested $100 a year for the ten years the market value would now be $75,000.

When the United Nations became the first international organization to issue stamps its aim was not to please collectors and investors, but to promote an understanding of the United Nations and its purposes.

Since the U.N. started using its own postmark it has sold over two hundred fifty million stamps, post cards and postal letters. The income from these postal operations have grossed 10 million dollars a year for the U.N. which is more than some of the member agencies contribute. The stamps, even though bought in authorized U.N. agencies around the world are only good for mailing at the world headquarters in New York. This makes it difficult for the purchaser who lives outside New York because the trip to the U.N. Post Office would cost more than the stamps.

The U.N.'s most beautiful stamp was one bearing an engraving of a mother and child honoring the Human Rights Commission. This three cent stamp was so popular that the price to collectors shot up to $15 on the public stamp market and the supply was exhausted. When it was time for the next issue, an oversupply was printed and the collectors' price went down.

The U.N. still believes that their stamps have an instructive value in educating people about its work. The young people who will receive a college education from these stamp collections should be forever grateful to this by-product of the United Nations.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Gravy to McCone From Uncle Sam

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy has picked some A-1 men for high office—some of the best in the past two decades. But either the FBI was asleep or the President had his mind on the Berlin crisis when he picked John A. McCone to head the giant Central Intelligence Agency which has a vital influence over American foreign policy.

Looking back over McCone's past, he has a record for making money out of Uncle Sam unequaled by any other man now in government. The record is all spelled out in congressional hearings, and it would have been easy for the FBI to have read it. The FBI, however, asks questions. It doesn't read.

Cross-examined regarding his shipbuilding partnership with the Henry Kaiser interests at San Francisco during the war, McCone admitted to the House merchant marine committee that the government had put up almost all the capital for their California shipbuilding company, of which McCone was president. It netted around a $44,000,000 profit.

"What was the total cost to the government of building your yard?" asked committee counsel Marvin Coles.

"Some $25,000,000," replied McCone. "How much of the moneys of your corporation were invested in the physical yard?"

"Very little, very little," replied the president of the company.

"Were there any profits to subcontractors?"

"Oh yes, there must have been."

A Wonderful Deal

"Did any of the executives receive management salaries that were reimbursable by the commission?"

"The executives . . . were reimbursed in a manner agreed to by the commission."

"And that was with government funds?" McCone was asked.

"That is correct."

"With material supplied by the government, with labor paid for by the government, with interest on borrowed capital paid for by the government, with management salaries paid for by the government, what were the fees and profits paid for?"

"For the building of ships," replied McCone, without batting an eye.

The House merchant marine committee also developed the fact that the government had turned over to McCone, Kaiser et al, all of the government's materials, machinery, and other facilities located at the shipyard estimated as worth about $14,000,000.

"The government put in $25,000,000 to the building of this yard," counsel Coles asked. "At the time of the completion of the contract was there any government-owned shipbuilding material in California Shipbuilding Company's yards?"

"There was," was McCone's laconic reply.

Coles asked if the value of $14,000,000 was accurate.

"That might have been the original cost of it, but a large percentage of it was nothing."

"Did you pay any money for this shipyard and the surplus property in the yard when you acquired it from the government?" Coles asked.

"We relieved the Maritime Commission of all their obligations and responsibilities for the restoration of the site that was owned by the Los Angeles Harbor Board," was McCone's alibi.

More Gravy

"Did you receive in addition to this yard that had cost $25,000,000 and this material which may have cost $14,000,000, an additional sum of $2,500,000 in cash?" pressed Coles.

"No," replied McCone, "but we did receive a revision of our selective price contract under which the amount of recapture was reduced by $2,500,000."

"So in effect you got an additional $2,500,000, did you?"

"You might put it that way," finally admitted the president of the shipping company.

Rep. Alvin Weichel, Ohio Republican, also brought out the fact that McCone-Kaiser deducted from income taxes $4,000,000 in non-reimbursable expenses, which McCone said was given away in salary bonuses, charities, group insurance premiums, and ship-launching expense.

"Did you give away $5,000 diamond necklaces?" asked Congressman Weichel.

"No, we gave $60 cigarette boxes," replied McCone, adding that the top gift was $800 to a ship sponsor.

"The government got cut both ways with it," pursued Rep. Weichel. "Your company was reimbursed for all the expenditures, for wages; materials, administrative costs, and everything except the $4,000,000. And this $4,000,000 you deducted from income taxes, so the government paid it that way. They did not pay it to you direct, but you deducted it from your income tax."

"To the extent that it lessened our tax," McCone concurred.

"Four million is a tidy sum even around here," commented Weichel.

Summarizing the facts, McCone's fellow Republican, Congressman Weichel, said: "The total number of ships you built was 467. The plant cost the government $25,000,000. There was $14,000,000 worth of property there when it was finished and you got $2,500,000 credit. That is roughly $41,000,000 . . ."

Adding in some other figures and making a quick calculation, Weichel concluded:

"Altogether your company got $91,000,000 for building 467 ships. Roughly, without the deduction of taxes, it cost the government nearly $200,000 in fees for each ship built by your company."

"The Todd (shipbuilding) people," Congressman Weichel pointed out, "had roughly $11,000,000 in fees and the plant cost about $14,000,000. Theirs was about half the cost to the government. Yours was $200,000 per ship."

That was how John A. McCone, now nominated to be head of CIA, got his big start up the business ladder to big government jobs and more profits in business.

West Berlin Women

The Berlin Wall has created more jobs for women in West Berlin. The iron curtain removed many East Berlin men from their jobs across the border. The result is that there is a labor shortage in West Berlin and the women are going to work.

The hardest hit industry is the women's garment factories where about 8,000 East Berliners commuted every day. Instead of carrying out expansion plans, the management now is investing in kindergartens, nurseries and cafeterias to lure women out of their homes. Some firms are organizing baby sitters so that the mothers can relax in the evening without hunting for a sitter and the firm pays for this service.

Wage scales for women in West Berlin have reached the level of men and some industries are offering regular plant excursions to other parts of West Germany, Denmark and even London or Paris.

Free health care, including dental service is offered by all labor short firms and the larger firms are beginning to organize shopping centers for the working wife and mother.

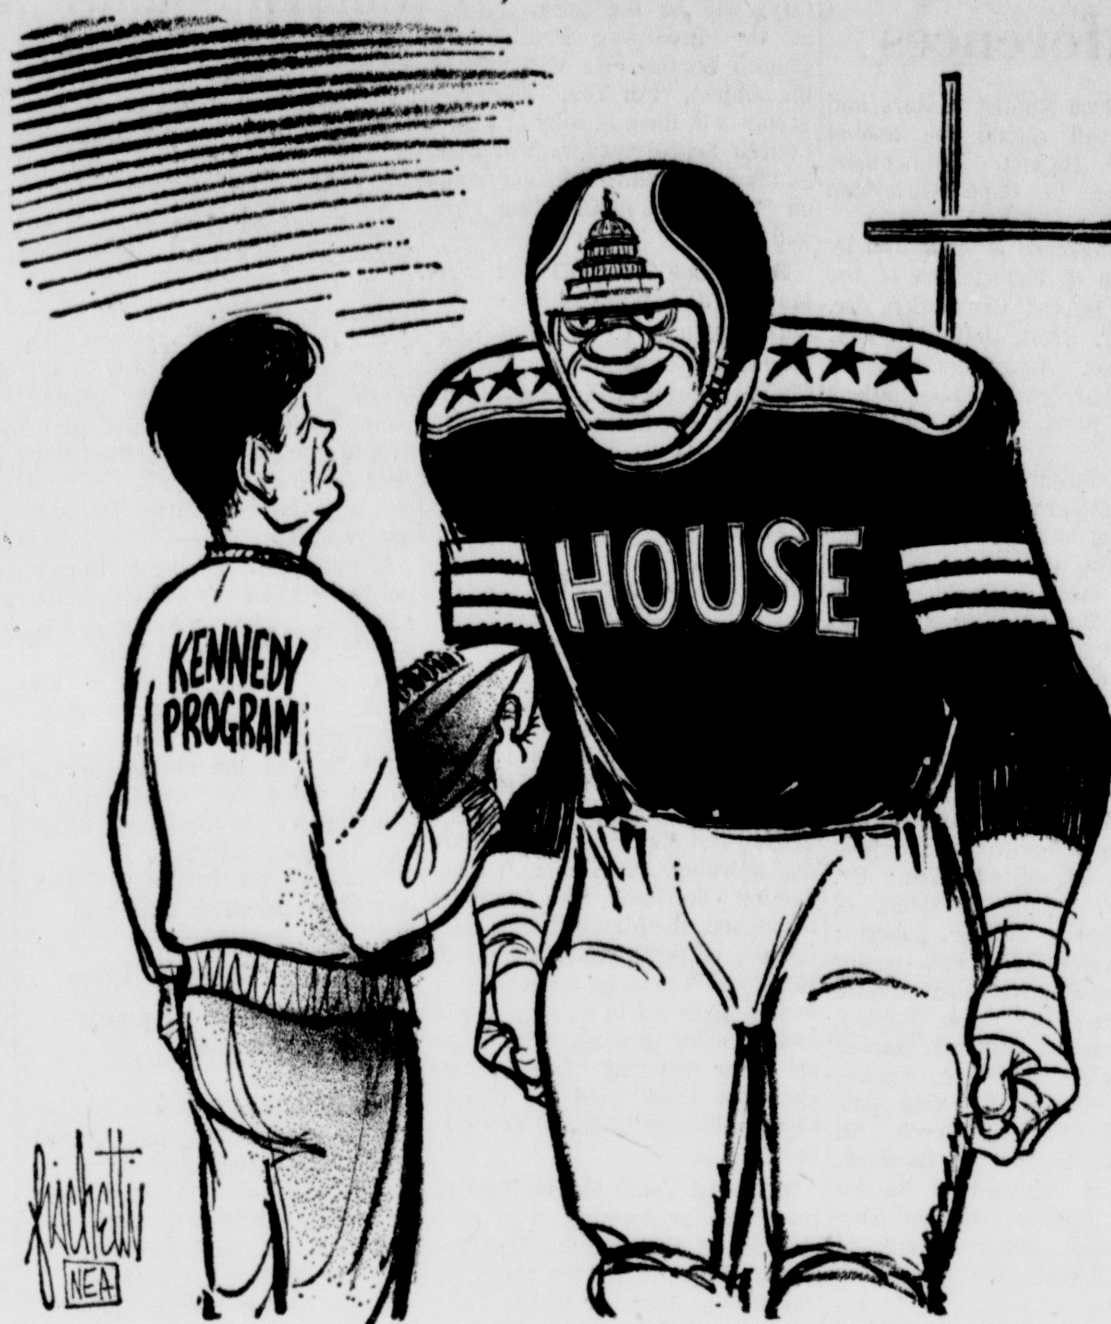

West Berlin sounds like a utopia for the working woman, but what effect will this new regime have upon the home life of the family? It may solve the economy of a city but will it destroy the kernel of society?

Thought for Today

With perverted heart he devises evil, continually sowing discord;—Proverbs 6:14.

The peacemakers shall be called the sons of God, who came to make peace between God and man. What then shall the sowers of discord be called, but the children of the devil? And what must they look for but their father's portion?—Saint Bernard.

Message Pictures Man In A Hurry

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Assn.

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy's State of the Union Message is the picture of a man in a hurry in more ways than one.

But some of the details are missing.

It was an ambitious message. Full of things to do. Kennedy will be kept busy if he tries to make good on all of them.

But the message looked hastily written, even patch together. He was still making changes—many changes—at the last minute by adding to the prepared text as he went along in his reading to Congress.

This message didn't compare—in careful phrasing—with the first State of the Union Message he delivered last Jan. 30 or—in rhetoric—with his highly polished inaugural address 10 days before that.

He was probably more effective for being less literary. Some of those 1961 speeches had a transparent self-consciousness this one lacked. This had an air of let's-get-down-to-cases-fast.

He didn't always get down to cases.

For instance, he called on Congress to wipe out literacy tests and poll taxes as bars to voting. He neglected to say how: By constitutional amendment or congressional vote.

Last year, despite his campaign promises of 1960, he didn't back any civil rights legislation other than asking for an extension of the Civil Rights Commission. But it remains to be seen whether what he said Thursday is really a switch.

The test is whether now, after finally saying these steps should be taken, he'll fight for them or just let his statement do for the year.

The same goes for the backing he gave Thursday to the proposal he made last year on federal aid to education: Money to help build public schools and pay teachers' salaries.

It got lost in controversy and this year, some thought, he would drop the fight for that and concentrate on trying to get federal help for higher education.

If he ignored the public school program, he'd be accused of retreating. Thursday he said he was still for it. The test of how much he's for it is how much he fights for it.

Throughout his talk Kennedy moved back and forth between saying simply some things are needed and saying that on others he will offer programs. Not all were new. Some he offered last year but they got nowhere.

If both kinds of statements are lumped together—and if he intends to follow through on all of them instead of just mentioning some and letting it go at that—then it can be said he laid over 4 proposals before Congress.

He also took time to review what he considered accomplishments of his administration in 1961. These covered many fields and directions. Some he wrapped up in one package, some he listed separately.

If listed singly, then he cited at least 7 areas of achievement; if in packages, then at least 4. His biggest roll call of accomplishments was in defense, ranging from modernizing weapons to building up the fleet.

Even before Congress gets down to work, which won't be before next week, it can be safely said on past experience he does not stand a chance of getting all he said is needed.

He'll probably consider himself lucky if, in this congressional election year, he gets 60 to 70 per cent. And he still hasn't mentioned some of the hottest proposals he'll ask Congress to approve this year.

They come later when he gets down to ABC on how much his individual programs—for instance foreign aid and money for defense—are going to cost.

Through it all ran a sense of action, of up and doing. He knows the American eyes watching him have shortened their focus. They were content with a long look in his first year in office when he was learning his job.

From now on, with the presidential apprenticeship over, he will be examined much more critically. This is true of every president and Kennedy, who knows his history, knows that.

Here's How to Nip Child's Buck-Passing at the Start

By Mrs. Muriel Lawrence

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

On Monday evening my 13-year-old eats little dinner. On Tuesday morning he awakens with a fever of 101. You call the doctor. His prescription is filled. But Bill's throat is so sore and swollen that he can scarcely swallow his first antibiotic capsule. In vain you produce fruit juice, egg-nogs, gelatins. Dopey with rising fever, Bill whispers, "Go away. . . Just leave me alone. . ."

But toward dawn on Wednesday he can swallow some fruit juice with his third capsule. By lunch time, pale, wan, but convalescing, he demands poached egg on toast.

So at these moments I suggest that we say composedly, "Going to school tomorrow is a question to settle between you. When you feel like it, why not put on your robe and make your telephone call to Dr. Jones?"

Seldom will it be made.

For Bill knows as well as we do that he can't go to school tomorrow. He just doesn't want to take the responsibility for knowing it.

He wants us to take it for him. Not only does our ungrateful but normal child want us to take it for him but also wants to make us feel silly, overprotective and overfussy for taking it.

If we are not weak and foolish, we don't let him get away with it. We say, "O.K., take your own business over. Confer with your doctor about your plans for tomorrow."

I repeat, the call is seldom made. But a certain calmness is restored to everyone. Superman has come down from the clouds and is willing to be what he is—a child moving through the process of recovery.

Retarded Responded Best To Diet Regime at Early Age

By Harold Thomas Hyman, M.D.

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—I have just read your article on the chemical substance that causes mental retardation in children and how diet can help. I think my son has this.

He has very light-colored hair and a very pale skin, just as you described. Also the roughness of the skin on his arms and legs. He was so slow we had to send him to a school for retarded children. Now he is 11 years old.

Is he too old to have the test? Is it too late for him to benefit from the diet?

A—He is certainly not too old to have the test, which merely involves noting a color change when a few drops of a chemical solution are added to his urine. And certainly, if he has a positive test for phenylketones, he deserves a trial of the recommended diet.

But I should caution you that the best results of dietary treatment are observed in children between the ages of 6 months and 3 years.

Q—I have two cervical ribs (X-ray examination). What symptoms do these cause? Should I have them removed?

A—Cervical ribs are frequently encountered as chance findings when chest films are taken. They rarely cause any type of distress and very, very rarely need to be removed.

If you ask the nature of the symptoms they cause, you can be pretty sure they're giving you no trouble. Because, when the muscle that's attached to a cervical rib compresses the nearby artery or nerve, it hurts like 40 devils.

Q—Why does our government spend so much money on cancer research when the Russians and the Swiss already have a cure?

A—If the "cure" to which you refer is called Carcin or Neo-Carcin, you may be interested to know that these products, sometimes described as mixtures of "active anticarcinogenic substances" and sometimes as "a serum from especially bred, selected white mice," were rejected for marketing by the French ministry of public health in 1946 and, more recently, by the American Cancer Society, which said: "Effectiveness not backed by any objective proof."

And that, my friend, is but one of the thousands of reasons my government and your government spends so much money on cancer research.

New Executive's Task: Build a 'Team of Tigers'

By FAYE HENLE

Here's the recipe for the new young executive.

Ability is the most important ingredient. It counts more heavily than social background.

Education is a must. Over 75 per cent of today's corporate executives attended college and almost 20 per cent have had postgraduate training. In a recent screening for executive talent, reports "Challenge," the magazine of economic affairs published by New York University, the man with a master's degree rated nine to one better than the man with but a bachelor's.

The new management man will be judged by what his followers do. This means to hit the top rung of the executive ladder he will have to be a leader. Because he will be confronted with more "complex technical and commercial problems than ever before, he won't be able to do all the work himself. . . . He must build a 'team of tigers'."

This new executive is not expected, according to Georges Odier, director of the Bureau of Industrial Relations at the University of Michigan and author of the article, to have a "definable executive personality but he will make things happen." What kind of things? His will be the responsibility, as it has always been, to decide how to increase sales, develop new products, cut costs, improve quality.

For the first time in at least the past 20 years, business is not looking to a specialist, but seeking instead a "generalist." Adaptability and flexibility are the needed traits; this man will face problems that go beyond any specialty.

The creative thinker is sought—the man who can analyze situations and classify problems identifying the proper course of action for others.

What will be wanted will be the organizer. The pitch will be on management teams, task forces. The growing numbers of people involved in a company will call for organizational talent, the sort that can delegate responsibility. For the lone executive at the top, it is predicted, the job will be too complex.

Business is looking for profits and growth; the executive who can produce these must be geared toward getting results and accepting responsibility. And, says the article, this man must "operate within a value system," meaning a code of ethics.

From what background does the present corporation president stem? According to a study of 200 leading companies, close to 20 per cent were drawn from the ranks of general management; over 15 per cent had engineering backgrounds; over 10 per cent originated in the financial, legal and sales departments; only about 8 per cent came in through family ties; slightly over 5 per cent were members of the clergy. Ranking lowest were men of science, under 5 per cent, and just about 5 per cent had production backgrounds. An equal number were classified as having "other" backgrounds.

Little Chats on Public Notice

HALF A LOAF

The principle of giving public notice through "legal advertising" is well accepted in the United States. Hundreds of laws in the codes of the 50 states, as well as numerous local ordinances providing for such publication, attest to this fact.

A public official who fails or neglects to carry out the intent of the law in such matters may lay himself open to a charge of nonfeasance. Similarly a person who in some private capacity is supposed to give notice and does not do so may deprive some other individuals of their legal right to be put on notice concerning something that affects them.

Occasionally an ordinance or a law may provide that a public notice be published by title only. Actually this is rare and is objected to on the ground that while this is a notice of sorts, it is insufficient and inadequate notice. This would be true especially of a proposed action where the title might include " . . . and for other purposes," the "other purposes" not being spelled out.

The argument usually given for suggesting the occasional publication of notices by title only is that it still serves the general purpose and is more economical. N. her reason is sound when weighed against the basic reason for public notices, namely, to inform the public where its rights are affected.

At best publication by title is only half a loaf or less. It is a question whether, in such cases, half a loaf is almost as bad as no loaf at all. Fortunately, and significantly, most jurisdictions do not permit this practice.

Guest Editorial

CHICAGO TRIBUNE: Library on the Lam.—It seems the East German Communists didn't get their wall up early enough. This year is the 30th anniversary of the founding of one of the world's notable libraries, the Preussische Staatsbibliothek, or Prussian State Library, the original seat of which was in East Berlin, now controlled by the Communists.

When the Communists decided to mark the anniversary, they looked around and found they had the library building and the shelves, but not the books. Like so many Germans before the wall was put up to discourage flight, the books had gone westward. The original Prussian State Library collection of 1,700,000 volumes, with 700,000 additional which have been acquired since, is housed in the university town of Marburg, in the West German Federal Republic.

The Communists are squawking no end that the books should be repatriated behind the wall and that they are no better than fugitives, but demands for their return have been coldly refused by West Germans. Nevertheless, the Communists proceed with extensive preparations for the celebration of the anniversary and are spewing forth quantities of "cultural" news about the collection that used to tenant the bare shelves. The propaganda is in East Berlin, but the books remain in West Germany.

by Ed. L. Lyn Crowley and C. Lee Overly, and other assistants, who will perform the local survey work. Their initial job will be to prepare maps showing the location of all buildings which appear to offer a substantial degree of protection from radioactive fallout for a minimum of 50 people.

The State Civil Defense director has requested all officials in the area who are contacted by the architect-engineers to cooperate in the expedited gathering of information for the program. The engineers will carry authentic identification issued by the Corps of Engineers. Detailed plans of structures will, where available, be most helpful to the engineers in determining suitability of the structure for the purpose.

The latest methods for data gathering will be used and the information will be assembled on special forms so that electronic data processing machines can extract necessary answers quickly and accurately. After all the information is obtained, the second phase will be the marking of such buildings which the computer indicates as satisfactory. Other phases of the program, such as interior markings, development of an overall shelter use plan, and provisioning of shelters will come at a later date.

Government representatives stated that other areas in the state are expected to be included in the Shelter Program Survey as quickly as contracts can be made.

Knob Noster and Leeton were the winners in the two games played Thursday night in the Knob Noster Invitational basketball tournament. The Knobs defeated Sweet Springs 63 to 43 while Leeton outlasted St. Paul's of Concordia 48-45.

The first game was played between Knob Noster and Sweet Springs. The only period Sweet Springs outscored the Knobs was the fourth and that was far short of needed points to win or tie. The score being 12 to 11. The opening quarter saw Knob Noster moved in the lead 16 to 10 came back in the second 22 to 14 for a half-time lead of 38-24, and added 14 to 7 in the third period.

Scoring of the two teams was fairly well divided among the team mates with Ficken leading the Knobs with 16 followed by Zink with 16, Fuller 10, Sebastian 8, Tebbenkamp 4, Henderson 2, Rinehart 3, Hughes 3, B. Jones 2, and T. Jones 2. For Sweet Springs, Schelp was the top scorer with 10 followed by Koch 9, Jenkins 8, Elwell 6, Flandermeyer 4, Heaper 3, Friley 3.

In the second game of the night, Leeton jumped to a slim lead in early quarters and nearly lost it in the second when St. Paul's put on a hard drive.

The first quarter saw Leeton with 12 to 7, but the second St. Paul's drive provided 18 points to Leeton's 16, but Leeton held the intermission lead 28 to 25.

The last half saw both teams knotting the scoring with 20 each. The third period St. Paul's tallied 12 to 13 while in the fourth it was St. Paul 8 to 7.

Dritt was the hub of the Leeton quintet with 27 points made off of 10 goals and seven free throws followed by Lynde 6, Crooks 5, Schimide 3, Paxton 4, Howard 3. Niernman carried the big stick for St. Paul's with 24 points off of 8 and 8 while Wolbrecht scored 13, Wenger 2, and Cashmere 2.

Action In Versailles Tournament

Games were close and action was fast in the final rounds of the Versailles Tournament, Thursday night.

In the lead-off the Versailles Tigers pulled one out of the bag, 62-55, from the Osage Indians.

Although Versailles got off to a slow start in the first quarter, they came back to win every other quarter and capture the victory.

Bolton was high for Versailles with 24. Other high pointers for Versailles were McMullin and Tankersley with 13 each. Bunch led the Indians with 24. Ryan was second with 12.

In the second contest the Camdenton Lakers squeaked by the Tipton Cardinals, winning their game, 59-52.

Although Tipton had a lead at several points in the game they were not able to keep it.

Green was high for the Lakers with 32, followed by Phillips with 24. Albin was high for the Cardinals with 17, followed by Howard with 13.

The tournament ends Friday night, with Versailles and Camdenton matched to play for first place, Iberia and Russellville play for consolation and Osage and Tipton play for third place.

Probation Hits Utah Thursday

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

All of a sudden, Utah got knocked out of a shot at its fourth straight NCAA post-season basketball title tournament by very likely the only outfit capable of doing the job—the NCAA itself.

Utah got hit with a one-year probation Thursday on charges of giving illegal financial aid to a basketball player, meaning some club other than Jack Gardner's Utes will be representing the Sky-line Conference in the annual NCAA extravaganza.

Undaunted by the penalty, national scoring leader Billy McGill and his playmates swept to their 12th victory in 14 starts Thursday night by trouncing Denver, 95-70. The hot-handed McGill netted 42 points, pushing his per game average to a gaudy 37.5 and breaking the Denver field-house record of 39 set by Vince Boryla of Denver 13 years ago.

Duke's Blue Devils (10-2), rated 10th nationally, won a scorching 104-96 at Clemson in the Atlantic Coast Conference, 104-96. Jim Mullins counted 14 of the Blue Devils' first 20 points and wound up with 30, while Art Heyman added 28. Jim Brennan scored 26 for Clemson and Tommy Mahaffey totaled 22.

Wichita (12-3), ran off from Drake 91-61. Larry Van Eman and Gene Wiley collected 18 points apiece on the home court for the Wheatshockers, one of the Missouri Valley Conference's big three. They are tied with Cincinnati for second place at 3-1, behind Bradley's 2-0.

Houston (11-3) enhanced its reputation as the Southwest's top independent, by beating Tulsa 69-61. Arizona State University (10-3), ran its Border Conference record to a perfect 3-0 and ended Texas Western's winning string at eight games, 62-55.

New Mexico State, also penalized by the NCAA Thursday with a 3-year probation for various infractions, cut down Arizona 68-55. Florida evened its season series with intrastate rival Miami at one apiece, 74-62, and Boston College trimmed Boston University, 77-70.

Other results — St. Louis 79, North Texas 60; Montana 91, New Mexico 79; William and Mary 71, The Citadel 58; Connecticut 104, New Hampshire 56; Georgia Tech 68, Georgia 62; Providence 68, Rhode Island 65 (overtime).

Calhoun Knocks Out Jim Ellis In First

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Rory Calhoun, knocked out in 1:47 of the first round in his fight with up-and-coming James Ellis of Louisville, says he's quitting the ring.

"I want to announce my retirement," the 27-year-old New Yorker said Thursday night after Ellis floored him with two smashing rights. "First, I'm too big to be a legitimate lightweight. Next, I'm not big enough to be legitimate light-heavyweight."

Ellis, 21, had little trouble with Calhoun in their scheduled 10-round middleweight boxing match. Calhoun weighed 167 for the match and Ellis 164.

Ellis now has a 6-1 record. Calhoun is 45-15-2.

Denver Broncos Look For New Head Coach

DENVER (AP) — The Denver Broncos of the American Football League are looking today for a head coach to succeed Frank Filchock, who was fired Thursday.

Filchock, former Canadian League coach who served the Broncos for two seasons, was bitter after his dismissal.

"They should have told me right after the season ended so I would have had a chance to get another job," Filchock said.

The Broncos won 3 of 14 league games last season and posted a 7-20 record with 1 tie for the two seasons in the AFL. Filchock is the sixth of the original eight coaches in the AFL to be fired.

Trade Talk May Solve Problems

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—A fellow made the rounds of the National Football League asking each club "what do you need most?" Wellington Mara, vice-president of the New York Giants, answered. Then he added: "I can't wait to see what Vinnie Lombardi needs."

Lombardi's Green Bay Packers, of course, clobbered the Giants, 37-0 in the league championship game.

The survey showed that even Lombardi was not satisfied. He wanted help, too.

Trade talk, begun at the league annual meetings, probably will solve some of the problems for the 14 clubs. Others hope to fill the gap with the new crop of college draftees.

Here is what they want, club by club:

Western Division
Green Bay—A defensive lineman and a defensive back, Lombardi thinks his draftees will fill the bill.

Detroit—A running back, offensive lineman and possibly a quarterback.

Baltimore—A big halfback to help Johnny Unitas and defensive backs.

Chicago—Help in the secondary both at halfback and safety positions.

Los Angeles—A big rushing lineman like the Packers' Henry Jordan and offensive linemen.

San Francisco—A linebacker, offensive backs and ends set at quarterback.

Minnesota — Defensive players, up front and in the secondary after giving up more points than any other club in the league.

Eastern Division
New York—Defensive lineman to lighten the load for the "big four" that played all the way in most of the 14 games. Also help for offensive line.

Philadelphia — Offensive lineman to hold off the rush on Sonny Jurgensen and a linebacker to replace Chuck Bednarik if he retires. Also could use an offensive end.

Cleveland—Offensive guard and tackle, receivers, a linebacker and a defensive back. Also a defensive end to replace Jim Houston who went into the Army.

Pittsburgh—an outside running threat and a quarterback to spell, or perhaps replace, Bobby Layne.

St. Louis — Offensive linemen and a little more luck after losing 11 men due to injuries during the 1961 season.

Washington — Offensive lineman and a fullback with the hope that Ron Hatcher of Michigan State can do the job.

Fifth Day For NCAA Convention

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO — (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association, programming the fifth day of its 56th convention, gave emphasis today to its differences with the Amateur Athletic Union, a television report, and a proposal for battling bribery and gambling in amateur sports.

Wilbur Johns, UCLA's athletic director and chairman of the NCAA's committee on AAU relations, prepared a review of past discussions with the AAU in the association's struggle to gain more representation and voice in the AAU. Johns' report appeared on the agenda in the wake of an NCAA council vote to endorse the creation of new federations in track and field and gymnastics as well as in basketball.

Jim Corbett, athletic director at Louisiana State University, was on the agenda to discuss plans for NCAA television of football for next season. A two-year NCAA contract with the American Broadcasting Company will expire before the next football season, and a new one must be negotiated.

A special round table meeting was the arena set for presentation of association president Henry Hardt's report on a 16-point program to eradicate gambling and bribery. The NCAA council approved the program in New York last October and will submit the plan for endorsement by the full convention tomorrow.

Among today's program items were proposals that would:

Bar all basketball competition outside NCAA events;

Bar an athlete from varsity competition until he has been in residence in a college for two years if he transfers after registering at another school;

Require an athlete transferring from one school to have one year of residence at his new school before becoming eligible for varsity competition; and

Require an athlete suspended from college for disciplinary or academic reasons to complete two years of satisfactory work at another school before he can compete on the varsity level.

The council, policy-making body of the NCAA, completed consideration of infractions Thursday by slapping a three-year term on New Mexico State, mostly for football violations; a one-year basketball punishment on the University of Utah; and one-year football bowl restrictions on two small school members, Humboldt State of Arcata, Calif., and Whitmore College of Spokane, Wash.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a woman 42, and in good health. During World War II I was a master sergeant in the Transportation Corps. Since I was in charge of a motor pool I learned a lot about automobiles and I could change a tire in seven minutes.

After the war I married a nice guy who is plenty on the lazy side. I've worked two jobs since the day we married.

Last night we were driving my aunt home from a party when he had a flat. Roy said "Honey, let's see if you can still change a tire in seven minutes."

I was embarrassed but decided to make a joke of the whole thing because I knew good and well he'd never do it. So I got out of the car in my high heels and satin dress and changed the tire.

Doctor Reveals Treatments For Over-Talkative

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — "A good long look at their tongues," is one technique advised by a Pennsylvania medical educator for physicians with over-talkative patients.

The method was outlined Thursday for students at Vanderbilt University School of Medicine by Dr. Francis C. Wood, chairman of the department of medicine at the University of Pennsylvania.

An alternative, Dr. Wood said, would be to "put a thermometer in the mouth and leave it there."

In really extreme cases, he said, the thing to do is to send the patient back to the waiting room with pencil and paper to list his symptoms.

Bank Is Filing Suit to Regain $12,000 Error

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Duncan had 67 cents in their Lee County Bank account last November when a bank clerk mistakenly credited their balance with $12,000.

In December, the Duncans withdrew their 67 cents — and the $12,000 — and now the bank has filed suit to recover the money.

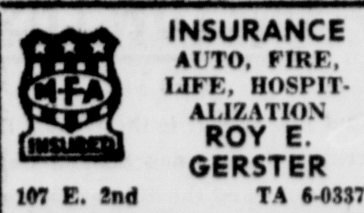

The suit charges the Duncans "wrongfully withheld the $12,000 and unjustly enriched themselves contrary to the laws and statutes of the state of Florida."

Bomb Scare Is Touched Off By Contraption

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — "Could it be a bomb," wondered anxious store officials after a gallon jug of murky liquid with a clock and batteries attached was found in a downtown department store.

The store was cleared under guise of a civil defense drill Thursday.

Bomb specialists removed the apparatus from a restroom in the Sears & Roebuck store. They placed the contraption in padded container and dropped most of the liquid into the ocean. Crime laboratory technicians tested what was left and determined it was water.

Today I'm mad at myself. Do you think I did the right thing or not? If the situation comes up again what should I do?—RE-TREAD.

Dear Retread: You did the right thing. A sense of humor can be a sturdy prop and you were wise to lean on it.

Next time you get a flat tell Roy you gave up changing tires when you put your uniform in mothballs. If he isn't up to the job hand him a dime and tell him to go to the nearest phone and call for help.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife passed away in 1956. Six months ago I married a woman who is attractive, intelligent and a fine companion.

Her living room furniture was better than mine so she moved it into my home. She also brought over her drapes and rugs. We are using my bedroom set and this is the cause of all the trouble. She claims she can't sleep in the bed because it reminds her of my deceased wife.

I say for an intelligent woman it is utterly ridiculous to be haunted by a ghost. After all, she is my wife now and the past has nothing to do with her. How can I get this across?—SOUND SLEEPER.

Dear Sleeper: Is your marriage worth the price of a new bedroom set? Then buy one.

Your wife's approach to the bedroom furniture is purely emotional and all the reasoning in the world won't reach her.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter was born on December 24th. We are seriously considering changing her birthday to June 24th and would like your opinion.

It's very difficult to give a birthday party the day before Christmas. And then, too, the child whose birthday falls on Christmas always gets cheated out of one set of presents. Everyone wants to give a birthday and Christmas gift in one. This hardly seems fair.

When we told a close friend that we were considering changing our child's birthday she looked at us as if we were nuts. Are we? — POOR PLANNERS.

Dear Planners: Parents who place such strong emphasis on a double set of gifts give a child a shabby sense of values.

The date of birth as registered on a birth certificate cannot be altered. Attempting to change

Resume Economic Aid To Laos Government

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—The United States today resumed economic aid to Prince Boun Oum's right-wing Laotian government. U.S. Embassy sources said the government was advised a $4-million cash grant for January was being deposited in a New York bank, the Chase Manhattan. The payment to defray most of the government's expenses had been held up for nearly two weeks, but an embassy spokesman refused to comment on the reason for the delay or for the resumption of aid.

Husband Plans To Use Estate To Aid Addicts

NOVATO, Calif. (AP)—David J. Mack, imprisoned husband of the late Barbara Burns, said Thursday he planned to use funds from his wife's estate to establish an organization to study narcotic addiction.

Mack, 27, a former Hollywood film technician, is serving a five-year-to-life term at San Quentin Prison for furnishing his wife with narcotics.

Miss Burns, daughter of the late comedian Bob Burns, died in Los Angeles Jan. 1 from an overdose of sleeping pills. She was 23, and freely admitted she was a narcotics addict.

Novato attorney Robert Carrow said he has been retained to make arrangements for the non-profit research foundation.

Mack said Miss Burns' estate mainly consists of rights to her autobiography, soon to be published.

Julie Harris Is Living By Last Chance Doctrine

NEW YORK (AP)—Julie Harris, a human being on fire, plays a constant game with eternity. She lives by a kind of "doctrine of the last chance."

"If you approach whatever you do with the idea that this might be your last day—your last chance to do it right," she said, "everything becomes terribly exciting. You can't be bored."

Miss Harris has so successfully transmitted her own quality of inner excitement to audiences that she has won nearly 20 acting awards. Her fellow performers regard her as one of the best of living actresses, and hold her a bit in awe.

I met her backstage after a matinee and felt pretty much like a peasant in the presence of his empress, for I am among this girl's idolaters.

Onstage, Julie has a quicksilver genius that enables her to play a French maid or Queen Victoria and make them both seem real. Offstage, she is a somewhat shy chameleon.

She is small, slender, slow to speak, and given to birdlike gestures. You can sense the buried intensity in her, the hidden flame that fired her at the age of 11 to be a great actress. That flame still burns brightly within her.

"I'm afraid my biggest defect as a person is my drive to be a perfectionist," she said. "Sometimes a person who wants everything to be exactly right, to do everything exactly right, forgets the limitations of human frailty, even sometimes forgets love. "I brood a lot, mostly about myself—the defects in my work. But brooding over oneself can become a sickness."

"After all, you cannot really reach perfection. You can only try to. When I feel that I have fallen short of what I want to do, it makes me unhappy."

"But I don't show my troubles. I keep them inside me. "I make an effort to do the task at hand as best I can and forget brooding."

Perfectionists often become angry at the limitations they meet. Here is how Julie says she reacts at such times: "I go away and count up to 100 slowly. If you can turn away just at the moment when you feel you could go berserk, when you come back the air is cleaner—and you can go on and cope with the problem."

Grenade Launcher Contract Awarded

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—U.S. soldiers soon will have a grenade launcher that looks like a shotgun and has a range of more than 400 yards.

The Army said Thursday it has awarded Exotic Metal Products Co. of Pasadena, Calif., a $1.4-million contract to produce 15,218 M79 launchers.

The 40-millimeter, nine-ounce grenade is designed for use against machine gun nests and small concentrations of troops.

Open House Scheduled At Ewing Funeral Home

Open house will be held Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 13 and 14 at the new chapel addition and expanded Ewing Funeral Home in Sedalia. Mr. and Mrs. Duane Ewing, owners of the funeral home, have issued an invitation to the public to attend this event.

Hours of the open house will be from 3 p.m. until 10 p.m. Saturday, and from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Sunday.

The newly constructed chapel addition to the funeral home has enhanced the appearance of the present building's exterior, and with the addition to the new "church-type" chapel, it is possible to hold two funerals simultaneously.

One of the most striking features of the "new" Ewing Funeral Home is the chapel entrance on Osage Street. An eighteenth century Italian fountain of stone cherubs stands in the entrance foyer, surrounded by plants and foliage, giving the effect of a tranquil formal garden. Settees and furniture are placed to allow visitors a place for meditation. The walls in the entrance foyer are papered in trellis-like pattern with foliage in green, off-whites, gold and turquoise. The floor of the entrance foyer and passageways is of travertine marble tile.

A private hallway leads off the entrance foyer into the family rooms and lounges. The wallpaper in this hallway portrays the city of Zurich, Switzerland. In this area is an automatic electric elevator.

Large double doors from the entrance foyer lead into the new chapel, which measures 30 by 60 feet. The chapel is furnished with comfortable, upholstered oak pews and has a matching church-type pulpit.

At the front of the new chapel, centered on a walnut-paneled wall, is a magnificent cathedral-type stained glass window, typical of those used in modern churches. The window of slab, stained glass is illuminated by concealed lighting and gives a mural effect. Especially designed for the Ewing Funeral Home, and the only one of its kind in existence, the window is symbolic of eternal life. The cloud at the top with gold and rose rays represents God's glory. The larger emblem in the shape of a tree is symbolic of new life through God; the regal blue peacock is a symbol of life everlasting and the golden butterflies signify the continuation of life. This inspiring window with its glowing colors and its symbolic message serves also to suggest the atmosphere of the chapel, which is one of beauty and reverence.

Thoughtfulness for the family's privacy and comfort in the new chapel is evident in the private entrance to the family room from the canopied driveway, the carefully arranged furniture groupings and the seclusion of the family in a special room just off the main chapel.

The new chapel area also includes private repose rooms where friends and relatives of a bereaved family may call to pay their respects prior to the funeral service.

Another special feature of the new addition is the passageway from the six-car garage to the lower level of the new building. Complete protection from inclement weather and private "off-street" loading is afforded family and pallbearers by means of a canopied driveway from Seventh Street to the rear of the new chapel addition.

The Ewings have announced the purchase of the old Masonic Temple building across the street from the funeral home, which will be converted into a parking area for friends who attend funeral services. Upon completion of the new parking area, the present parking lot adjacent to the funeral home on the east, will be used exclusively for additional family cars, pallbearers, ministers and musicians.

The Ewing Funeral Home was established here in December, 1935, by the present owners, and is Sedalia's largest funeral directing home. For several years the Ewings have been selected as Sedalia's only member of the Order of the Golden Rule—an international affiliation of dependable funeral directors who serve as measured not by gold—but by Golden Rule."

HE'LL PLAY "IKE"—Henry Grace, of Hollywood, Calif., supervising set director of a movie studio, has been chosen to play Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in the film, "The Longest Day." He's shown in a test picture, not in a clip from the movie.

Shadow of New Recession Colors State of the Union

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—The shadow of the next recession—and at a time of rejoicing over the economy's recovery from the last—colors President Kennedy's summing up of the State of the Union.

It's a shadow that has been much discussed in business circles and eyed warily by stock traders. The time of the next one is the point most in dispute—next fall or 1963?—rather than any feeling it won't come along in time.

But the President concentrates on what can be done to avert or minimize it.

To ward off another slump he suggests such things as investment tax credits to encourage industry to spend more for plants and equipment. The goal would be stimulation of economic growth, avoiding at least for a longer time than now seems likely a stagnation that could breed recession.

Small Girl Is Uninjured In Gas Explosion

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP)—Nine-year-old Jenny Olwell was reaching for the cookie jar Thursday afternoon when the house blew up.

"It just went boom," she explained. Both side walls, the front and a section of the roof were blown out. Jenny, who suffered only minor burns and cuts, was alone except for her cocker spaniel pup.

Neighbors were unable to reach her in the ruins but shouted directions. She walked out with her unharmed pup.

Asst. Fire Chief Ray McManua said faulty gas lines were the apparent cause of the explosion.

Democrat-Capital Class Ads Are Workers You Can Afford To Hire! Phone TA 6-1000.

The President also sees in his proposals to seek tariff cuts both at home and abroad a way to boost world trade in general. In particular this presumably would boost U.S. exports. This, too, could counteract the forces working for a cyclical downturn in industry sometime in the future when the momentum of the current upturn has spent itself.

His measures for making the next recession, when and if it materializes, less painful and shorter run all the way from taxes to public spending.

The President asks powers to cut the federal income tax temporarily if the economy slumps. The effect would be to increase pay by less withholding at source. The argument: If the takehome pay check is larger, people will spend the extra amount. That will stimulate business, avert layoffs, make everyone more confident.

The argument usually advanced against the effectiveness of such a move is that the consumer isn't so predictable. If business is turning down, he may start saving more and spending less, regardless of any change in the size of his takehome pay.

The President also wants standby powers to start federal spending for public works when a recession begins. The argument for it: Authorizing, planning and starting a public works spending program usually takes so long that the economy is already recovering by the time the money reaches the public it is supposed to help.

Opponents of the President's plan are likely to argue that such spending, even if the congressional delay is avoided, would still be too late to help in the early months of a recession when stimulus is most needed. They might also argue that a chief executive might mistake a temporary bobble in business activity for the start of a recession. Spending on public works would then be a drag on the taxpayer rather than a necessity.

Groucho Is Back On TV In New Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The mustached Marx brother came back to TV Thursday night with a new program, "Tell It to Groucho" on CBS.

You can tell it's a new program because it's on a different network and Groucho sits in a sort of patio instead of on a stool at a desk. And they've reduced that mandatory "game" to a point where it is hardly visible, much less playable.

If the producers can keep on turning up characters like Beth and Betty, the first guests, the show will be great. They were a cat-fancying mother-daughter pair in quest of husbands (that was their problem; all guests must have one). They had their thirteen cats along, mother never stopped talking and it was all quite mad and very funny.

I think people either love Groucho and his shows or can't see them at all. I love them and I'm glad he's back on weekly TV.

After all of last year's complaints about the use of names pin-pointing the ethnic origins of villains, particularly in "The Untouchables," the crime program writers have been very careful to give this season's big crop of black-hats bland Anglo-Saxon sounding handles. But nobody seems to have noticed that two strong, good TV heroes carry Latin-sounding names: Paul Marino, the crusading columnist of "Target: The Corruptors," and Sgt. Steve Carella, the top-cop in "87th Precinct."

NBS's occasional afternoon specials for women have been exploring so many of the unhappy, problem-scratched facets of woman's life they'll soon run out and have to try something else, like "The Happy Housewife," or "The Teens Can Be Fun." Having run through such subjects as the trapped housewife, the cold woman, the lonely woman, the next subject up for inspection is "The Promiscuous Woman." On Feb. 15, if you want to make a note to catch it.

Louise King, a red-haired actress (largely off-Broadway) has done so well during her two-week stint with NBC's "Today" show, they've called off the talent hunt and given her the permanent job as "Today Girl," replacing Robin Bain, who decided she didn't like getting up at 4:30 a.m. daily for her chores.

Danny Thomas, apparently, has decided he's still far enough ahead to keep on making his situation comedy for at least another season. Also, the sponsor has renewed. Just to keep himself interested and stimulated, Danny will make eight shows in Europe—starting in May—and he'll direct some of the episodes.

Recommended week-end viewing: Tonight—"The Good Years," CBS, 8:30-10 (Eastern Standard Time)—90-minute revue about the years between 1900 and 1918, with Lucille Ball, Henry Fonda and Mort Sahl.

Saturday — "The Fourposter," CBS, 8:30-10—Jackie Cooper, Tammy Grimes and Tom Ewell in still another adaptation of the durable stage play.

Sunday—"John Brown's Body," CBS, 1:30-2:30 p.m. — Richard Boone recites Stephen Vincent Benet's poem, and Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson comments; "The Farmer's Daughter," NBC, 10-11—Peter Lawford, Lee Remick and Charles Bickford in a "Theatre '62" adaptation of the vintage Loretta Young movie.

Judge Approves Disney Contracts

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A judge Thursday approved new contracts for three of Walt Disney's young movie players.

Tommy Kirk, 20, will start at $1,000 per week and go to $3,000 if all options in his new seven-year contract are taken up.

Kevin Corcoran, 12, got a raise from $750 to $900 per week.

Annette Funicello, 19, was raise from $500 to $650 per week. Studio attorney Luther Marr said she also gets around $10,000 a year under a contract with a record subsidiary of Walt Disney Productions.

California law requires court approval of minors' contracts.

Film Maker Gives Hand To Student

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Not many students can have a famous film producer help them with homework. Here's David O. Selznick to do just that.

Desta J. Burke of Jonesboro, Tenn., sent me a letter asking a number of intelligent questions about the film "Gone With The Wind" for a school report. Lacking all the answers, I sought help from the man who made the 1939 classic. These are Selznick's replies to Desta's questions

Q. What studio made "Gone With The Wind"?

A. The Selznick Studio. MGM had nothing to do with it. (Though MGM lent Clark Gable and now owns the film.)

Q. Was Margaret Mitchell consulted on production?

A. She absolutely refused to be consulted or to read the script. She warned me before the Atlanta premiere she would denounce the picture if she didn't like it. She raved about it, and I have a half-dozen letters thanking me for the film.

Q. Did Vivien Leigh and Clark Gable attend the Atlanta premiere?

A. Yes.

Q. How long did it take to film the movie?

A. Six months.

Q. Who wrote the screen version?

A. Sidney Howard.

Q. Was there any filming on location?

A. Except for a few shots in Georgia without the principals, the entire film was shot in Culver City.

Q. Before it was cut, how long was it?

A. Four hours and 20 minutes. It was cut down to the final version of 3 hours and 45 minutes

Jazzman Loses Custody of His Small Daughter

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Jazzman Pete Candoli, husband of actress Betty Hutton, lost physical custody Thursday of his 7-year-old daughter by a former wife.

A Superior Court judge awarded physical custody of Tara Claire Candoli to her mother, Vicky Lane, after the mother claimed Candoli and Miss Hutton left the child in care of servants while out of town on show engagements.

Candoli and Miss Hutton won custody of the girl in an earlier decision. Candoli was granted joint legal custody and reasonable visitation rights. He will pay $150 monthly child support.

Former Dominican Diplomat to Paris

NEW YORK (AP) — Porfirio Rubirosa, former Dominican diplomat who was questioned by the district attorney here in connection with the 1935 slaying of two Dominicans, left for Paris by plane Thursday night.

Asked if he would return to the city if wanted for further questioning in the slayings, Rubirosa replied "I'm coming back for Easter anyway."

without losing a scene or doing retakes.

Q. How many Academy awards did it win and what were they?

A. Eight—Best picture, actress Leigh, supporting actress Hattie McDaniel, director Victor Fleming, writer Howard plus cinematography, art direction and editing.

Births Up For County During '61

Some Fluctuations In Marriage And Divorce Numbers

Births in Pettis County showed a healthy increase in 1961 over the past year while deaths declined some, according to figures compiled here by the county registrar.

Two other areas of vital statistics, marriages and divorces, showed only marginal fluctuations over 1960.

Statistics released by Mrs. Lynn Shelby, county registrar for the state bureau of vital statistics, revealed 899 new babies were born in Pettis County during 1961, an increase of 163 compared to 736 in the previous year. Deaths at 407 had dwindled from a 447 total in 1960.

June, traditionally the most popular month for marriages, retained its top spot in 1961 with 43 couples going to the altar that month. A total of 306 couples exchanged wedding vows during the year, using marriage licenses obtained through the office of Reno Johnson, Pettis County recorder. This represented a slight decrease from 1960 when 327 marriages were solemnized.

A month-by-month breakdown of marriage licenses issued by the recorder's office follows: January, 14; February, 20; March, 15; April, 19; May, 27; June, 43; July, 26; August, 39; September, 28; October, 18; November, 28; and December, 29. No figures were available for county couples who obtained licenses in other counties or states and in the same light not all of those receiving licenses here were necessarily local persons.

While 306 couples were marching to the altar during the year, 113 others were taking steps to dissolve their relationships.

Circuit Court records, compiled in the office of Circuit Clerk Bryan Howe, indicated 110 couples were granted divorces in the court of Judge Frank Hayes with three other marriages being annulled. The divorce figures represented a marital-split rate of about the same as the previous year when 116 couples ended their marriages — 112 through divorces and four through annulments.

Formal Opening Of Boys' Club

The Boys' Club of Sedalia program opens Saturday at Convention Hall, Liberty Park, where all sessions will be held. The activities will be between the hours of 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. every Saturday and between the hours of 7 to 9 on Wednesday evenings. Athletic programs will include basketball, tumbling, weight lifting, gymnastics and boxing. Other activities will be ping pong, pool, archery, leatherwork, painting, games of various kinds and group singing.

Ages are from 8 to 18, and an excellent staff of volunteer leaders, well qualified in their particular fields, to supervise the activities has been secured. The board of directors of the Boys' Club of Sedalia asks that anyone who has equipment of any kind that is in good condition they would donate to the Boys' Club to call the director, Palmer Nichols, at TA 6-3506.

Boys who would like to join and did not register last Saturday may do so this Saturday.

Fishing By Summer

Spring Fork Lake Picnicking Delay

Fishing in Spring Fork Lake may be permitted this Spring and Summer, but picnickers will have to wait for at least another year, according to information passed out at the regular meeting of the Board of Public Works Wednesday night.

At the meeting John Martin, attorney for the board, submitted a tentative ordinance regulating public use of the area for recreation. Board members were given copies of the proposed ordinance to study until the next meeting of the board scheduled for Feb. 7.

Roughly, the proposed ordinance parallels information previously published in relation to use of the lake area for recreation. It provides for permits for anyone living in the city limits of Sedalia over 12 years old. Those under 12 will not need permits when accompanied by their parents, thus every person in the city may use the area under regulations specified in the ordinance.

Melvin Jones, a board member who has been assigned the job of working out the recreation plan, said the State Board of Health has given its permission to go ahead with the plan. A representative from the state office is to be in Sedalia as soon as weather permits, to go over the entire plan in detail with Jones, and work out any "bugs" that might at some future date threaten the withdrawal of state approval for Sedalia's water supply.

The area, it was brought out in the discussion, will be policed, permits checked and certain areas designated as "no fishing" areas. Trash receptacles and rest rooms (Please turn to page 4, column 6)

In 8 Minutes Ranrahirca Is Wiped Out

Expect Casualties In Area May Reach At Least 3,000

LIMA, Peru (AP) — A 12-yard-deep mass of mud, rock and melting ice, sluiced down a towering mountainside by an enormous avalanche, entombed the Andean village of Ranrahirca and most of its 500 people Thursday.

Peruvian officials feared hundreds more in the area may have died in one of the worst disasters of its kind. Their fears were based on fragmentary reports, however.

In the first shock of the disaster which struck Wednesday night, some officials speculated that the final toll might be around 3,000 casualties. But later they said it would be some time before they could determine the full extent of the disaster because of broken communications.

"In eight minutes Ranrahirca was wiped off the map," said Mayor Alfonso Caballero in one of the few reports from the area. He said only 50 of the nearly 500 residents survived in Ranrahirca, a village 200 miles northwest of Lima and 30 miles north of the hot springs resort of Huaraz.

More than 7,000 persons lived in surrounding ranching and mining communities and in the nearby district of Yanamari.

Another survivor, Dr. Leoncio Guzman, who barely escaped from a nearby settlement, expressed the opinion the death toll would reach 3,000.

"It looked like everyone in Ranrahirca had been buried by the ice, rocks and mud," he said.

Because of the depth of the debris only two bodies had been recovered.

Ranrahirca, a 9,000-foot altitude village surrounded by the snowcapped peaks of the Huascan Mountains, and the nearby communities were settling down peacefully.

Then, at dusk, huge chunks of ice from a glacier, loosened by Peru's summer sun, crashed down and strated a gigantic flood of water and snow down the slope.

It came with a "hellish" sound, said a survivor, ripping and tumbling trees, crushing houses, engulfing livestock.

The only warning was the roar and a cloud of dust raised over the onrushing slide as it swept over arid land.

Planes were dispatched with relief supplies, and troops went to work to open roads.

Huaraz was the scene of a similar disaster just over 20 years ago when an avalanche-dammed river broke through and took lives of 4,000 persons.

The Huaraz tragedy was topped only by the 1916 snowslide in which 9,000 Austro-Hungarian troops perished under tons of snow.

Mothers to March On Polio; Seek Volunteer Workers

The Mothers March on Polio will be held Jan. 29.

Volunteer workers are needed badly and anyone willing to give a small amount of time, enough to call on about ten homes in their own neighborhood where the porch lights are on, is asked to call TA 7-0280.

Some Base Workers Get Pay Increase

The Army-Air Force Wage Board in Washington has announced the completion of a locally wage survey affecting hourly paid employees at Whiteman Air Force Base. The average increase for these employees is six cents per hour, and was effective Jan. 7. This means an annual average increase of $124.80 per year, officials said.

Approximately 128 Whiteman Civil Service employees were affected by the rate change.

Registration Voting Books Closing Date

The registration books for Sedalia voters will be closed according to state law 28 days prior to the March 6 primary election.

According to County Clerk Jim Green, Sedalia citizens must be registered by 5 p.m. Monday, Feb. 5, in order to vote in this election.

To be qualified to vote in this election, a person must be a citizen of the United States, over 21 years of age, have been a resident of the state for one year, and a resident of Pettis County and Sedalia for 60 days. He or she must be registered.

Green today urged Sedalians who have moved or married and those who have become of legal age recently, to go to the County Clerk's office, on the second floor of the courthouse, and register or notify the election officials of the change of address or marital status.

The primary election in Sedalia will be held in all precincts.

In conjunction with the primary, a special election on the state gasoline tax issue will be held.

This gasoline tax election will be held in all precincts outside of Sedalia, Green said.

Persons living outside the Sedalia City limits in Pettis County are not required to register to vote in their precincts.

Husband Found Shot

Sharon Kinne Guilty, Gets Life Sentence

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Mrs. Sharon Kinne, 22-year-old mother of three children, was found guilty of first degree murder Thursday in the death of her husband.

The jury of 11 men and a woman imposed a life sentence on the attractive Independence, Mo. woman, who was acquitted of a similar charge last June in the death of the wife of one of her lovers.

The state had not asked for the death penalty for the woman, who was charged in the slaying March 19, 1960, of her husband, James A. Kinne, 25.

Mrs. Kinne remained impassive in the courtroom as the jury returned the verdict after 5½ hours of deliberations which began Wednesday afternoon.

Kinne was found shot in bed at the home and an automatic pistol was found on the pillow near his head. Mrs. Kinne said she was in the bath room when she heard a shot.

The state claimed the couple had been having marital trouble; that Mrs. Kinne was having an affair with another man and had offered $1,000 to have her husband slain so she could get $29,000 in insurance.

But the defense contended the couple's daughter, Danna Kinne, 2½ at the time, had picked up the pistol from a table and accidentally shot Kinne while playing with it. Witnesses said it would have been impossible for the father to inflict the fatal wound in the back of his head. It also was brought out there were no powder burns on the body.

During the trial John Boldize, 23-year-old boy friend of the defendant, testified Mrs. Kinne had offered $1,000 to have her husband slain. But he later said he thought she had made it in jest.

Another witness, Donald L. Boone, who said he was an acquaintance of the woman, testified that she had asked him to do something for her, but she had declined to tell him what except

Army Lets Contract

Fall out Shelter Surveys Planned In Area Counties

Colonel Alfred J. D'Arezzo, District Engineer, U. S. Army Engineer District, St. Louis, and Dean Lupkey, Civil Defense Director for the State of Missouri, have jointly announced that the firm of Prichard and Company, Inc., of Independence, has been given a contract with the U. S. Army Engineer District, St. Louis, to do field work in the Fallout Shelter Survey Program. This is the second contract for such work and involves the counties of Bates, Benton, Cass, Cedar, Cooper, Henry, Hickory, Johnson, Lafayette, Moniteau, Morgan, Pettis, Saline, St. Clair, and Vernon in the state of Missouri.

Crowley indicated that he would plan to begin the survey within the next week or ten days and that cities and towns within the counties named can expect representatives of his firm to call and identify themselves within the area. State Civil Defense Director Lupkey said in almost every community there are believed to be buildings and structures which can provide adequate shelter from the effects of radioactive fallout in the event such shelter should ever be needed.

Government representatives pointed out that the contractor's mission at this time is to make a shelter survey and that it will be necessary for the Architect-Engineer teams to visit a structure for physical inspection to determine its capability and that necessary clearances to make these inspections will be sought from property owners.

Colonel D'Arezzo added that any firm which is placed under contract with the Corps of Engineers has received intensive, specialized training in structural analysis of fallout shelters at colleges and universities sponsored by the government. Under this second contract which has been issued by the St. Louis District, the successful firm will be represented in the

JFK States Program Asks Wide Powers Tax-Cutting And Tarriff-Slashing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy asked a hushed, hesitant Congress Thursday for unparalleled power to slash taxes and tariffs as part of a partnership for progress in a nation "ready to seize the burden and glory of freedom."

Standing in the rostrum of the House chamber where he used to serve, the man who has been president not quite a year laid down for the months ahead a program of vast proportions and as yet vague details.

The great goals he outlined are a strong and growing economy, a healthy, prosperous, well-educated people, awesome military might, and, overriding all else, an end to what Kennedy called a global civil war that "has divided and tormented mankind."

"And," the President told the Senate and House, "while no nation has ever faced such a challenge, no nation has ever been so ready to seize the burden and glory of freedom. And in this high endeavor may God watch over the United States of America."

And, in a 6,000-word State of the Union message, the young President surprised many legislators by calling vigorously for multi-billion-dollar federal aid to public schools and for civil rights legislation. Many had developed the notion that the administration would soft-pedal these issues this year.

"The right to vote . . . should no longer be arbitrarily denied through such iniquitous local devices as literacy tests and poll taxes," Kennedy declared.

Wrapped up in his report on how the nation stands and what is needed were many well-anticipated requests—for creation of a new Cabinet-level Department of Urban Affairs, for higher postal rates, for a new farm program. Details on most of these were left

A Shivering South

West-Midwest Emerge From The Subzero

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The cold wave swept across New England Thursday and set new records in the shivering south.

But many communities in the West and Midwest emerged from the subzero cellar in a day of bright sunshine but chilling winds.

The tally of deaths blamed on the snow and cold that began in some areas last week rose to 123. Of the total 21 were attributed to exposure, 66 to heart attacks suffered while shoveling snow or pushing stalled cars, and 36 to traffic accidents on icy or snowy streets and roads.

At daybreak freezing cold blanketed all of the nation except the peninsula of Florida and a strip along the Pacific coast, nipping and stinging the vast majority of the country's 185 million residents.

The mercury dropped to zero or below in at least 24 states.

Among the reading were 49 in Fraser, Colo., 39 in Laramie, Wyo., and 25 in Pueblo, Colo., places conditioned to arctic air—and to 4 in Cullman, Ala., and 2 in Yazoo City, Miss., in unconditioned Dixie.

The cold front toppled temperatures below the zero mark in many parts of New England.

Connecticut Lake in northern New Hampshire reported -18.

The 15 above in Pensacola, Fla., established a record low for January there. Mobile, Ala., had 8 above, the lowest for January on record books that span 90 years.

East Mobile Bay was frozen for a distance of 300 to 500 feet from shore.

A mixture of sleet and freezing rain pelted Tallahassee, Fla. Three communities near Pensacola, — Crestview, DeFuniak Spring and Milton—had 12 above.

Many New Orleans families went without water because of frozen pipes.

Schools remained closed in many sections of the South.

Southern Florida escaped the frigid blasts but a blend of smoke and fog shut down some airports.

Vegetable and citrus crop losses were feared in the Rio Grande Valley in Texas.

Galveston, Tex., had 17 above, the lowest ever recorded there.

Partisanship Still Prevails In Congress

Most Republicans View President's Talk With Alarm

WASHINGTON (AP)—Partisan tradition prevailed for the most part Thursday in congressional reaction to the State of the Union report from Democratic President Kennedy—but that tax-cut talk gave Republicans a fresh target and they lost no time shooting at it.

By and large, Democrats pointed with pride at the message as a whole and described it in such terms as "wise and sensible," "tremendous and eloquent," "strong and forceful."

Republicans, in the main, viewed with alarm what they saw as a continued drive toward more centralized government and excessive spending.

Several Republicans and some Democrats objected vigorously to Kennedy's request for standby authority to lower income taxes temporarily by executive order—not, they made clear, because they're against tax cuts but because they feel any cutting should be done by Congress.

Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., saw political dynamite in the tax-cut proposal, saying: "Any President could use that in the middle of a political campaign. Then Congress would be made the goat if it had to raise them later."

Sen. Homer E. Capehart, R-Ind., expressed belief the granting of such power to the President would be unconstitutional and said, "I think Congress ought to cut them itself."

Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., called the tax proposal "the most preposterous suggestion of all."

Liquidation and Hedge Selling Burdens Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Liquidation and hedge selling burdened the wheat and corn futures trade Thursday and both grains added further steep setbacks to their recent declines.

All corn contracts slid off more than a cent a bushel and again sold at lowest levels of the season. September and December wheat also touched bottom for the season and the March delivery traded at its lowest price since last July 14.

Oats eased fractionally; rye and soybeans finished mixed.

The pressure in wheat was described as reflecting discouragement among speculators who had held long positions in the market for several weeks expecting a more active and flexible price range which would provide sufficient room for at least closely placed trading turns.

But rallies and ranges have been so few and so narrow that opportunities to move in and out of the market were scarce.

Wheat closed 1-1½ cents a bushel lower, March $1.07½-¼; corn 1¼-1½ lower, March $1.07½-¾; oats ¼-½ lower, March 72½-½; rye ½ lower to ½ higher, March $1.34½-¾; soybeans ¼ lower to ¼ higher, January $2 43½-¼.

Subpoena For Maj. Coughlin Is Quashed

Claims Collet Told Him 'Your Troubles Are Just Beginning'

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A subpoena for Charles Coughlin, suspended police officer freed of an indictment charging perjury, to appear as a witness before the Jackson County grand jury was quashed Thursday by Circuit Judge Tom J. Stubbs.

The judge acted after a brief hearing in which two assistant county prosecutors said they did not know if Coughlin was the subject of a grand jury investigation. The judge was told that only William A. Collet, the prosecutor, could answer the question and he was out of the city.

The judge was told the subpoena was issued at the direction of Collet. It was served on Coughlin a few minutes after a grand jury indictment against him was dismissed.

Coughlin, a major in the police department, was suspended along with three other officers last spring when they were indicted on charges of perjury. All have been cleared of the charges.

At Thursday's hearing Coughlin was asked if any comments had been made to him after the charge against him was dismissed Wednesday.

Coughlin said Collet had told him: "Your troubles are just beginning, Mr. Coughlin." He added that 10 or 15 minutes later he was served with a subpoena to appear before the grand jury.

The officer, who said he was seeking reinstatement in the department, was accused of accepting protection payoffs in 1953. William A. Halbert, a former detective and the state's star witness, failed to appear for Coughlin's trial after a jury had been selected.

Thursday, however, his attorney said Halbert would be in Kansas City Friday to appear before the grand jury.

Religion in England

Is the Christian Church, in its influence upon society and upon the lives of individuals, gaining or receding? Discussion of this topic is confined largely to Protestantism.

The nature and extent of Protestant influence obviously depends much on the community under observation. In some areas it is strong, but in other areas weak.

While much reference is in general to the U.S.A., it is in Great Britain, and especially in England, that the problem seems to be most clearly focused.

England has been proverbially known as "the land of the Book," that is, the Bible. The fact that the recently published New English Bible has attained a circulation of over two million might indicate that it is still that. And there has been the notable recent celebration of the 350th anniversary of the Authorized "King James" Version.

But other facts are not so reassuring. If the strength of a movement is judged by its literature, it is startling to note that the Communist newspaper, The Daily Worker, has a larger circulation than that of the three Church of England weekly newspapers combined—a fact that does not so much mean the extent of Communist influence as the apathy and lack of interest of the churchmen.

It is the apathy and lack of interest that underlies the general agreement that church attendance has drastically fallen off both in the national and free churches, in both urban and rural areas, and in Presbyterian Scotland as well as in England. Observers report that there is no active antireligious or antichurch sentiment, but there is just this lack of interest.

Statistics, too, enforce such observations. There is a lack of on-coming ministers. Parishes are joined together with inadequate ministry. And in the Church of England there are more ministers over 75 than there are under 35.

There are many other ramifications, but the situation is not all adverse or discouraging. The very fact of the intensity of the survey is arousing constructive interest and effort.

Strange to say, considering the enormous organization and publicity of great campaigns like that of Billy Graham, there is growing criticism of mass movements, with a demand for personal evangelism and for possible adoption by the churches of the aggressive personal campaigns exemplified by Mormon missionaries, who have been having outstanding results in England and the particularly aggressive Jehovah's Witnesses.

The end is not yet, and whatever the future in America, the building of William Blake's "Jerusalem in England's green and pleasant land" is by no means an outworn task.

Looking Backward...

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Rabbi Newton J. Friedman, Rabbi at Temple Beth El since 1930, has resigned to accept an offer in Gloversville, N. Y. where he will serve as combined Rabbi and director of the Jewish Community Center of Fulton county. Rabbi Friedman was active in civic affairs here, a member of Kiwanis, the board of the Sedalia Symphony and secretary-treasurer of the Ministerial Alliance. He was married here in 1935 to Miss Rosalie Kanter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Kanter.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The residence on the farm owned by Col. H. C. Demuth, one and one half miles north of La-Monte, and occupied by A. M. Waisner and family, tenants on the farm, was completely destroyed by fire during the night. The loss amounted to $4,000 with $750 insurance.

What They Say

Letters to Editor

R. M. BATTLES (West Side Variety) — On several occasions I have heard some intelligent and intensely loyal citizens remark that "the downtown area of Sedalia is going to the dogs."

I hasten to add my little comment, and I don't agree with these good folks. The blight that has caused serious harm to downtown areas of numerous American cities may be forming its ugly picture here, but no real damage has accumulated so far.

We do have a few empty downtown buildings. We also are saddled with a mess of traffic regulations of "don'ts, stops, no right turn, no left turns, no parking here, varied speed limits, yield right-of-way, etc. etc.

The driving skill and patience of law abiding drivers are taxed to the limit, and as a result many Sedalians avoid coming downtown. Visitors not familiar with our messy accumulation of traffic regulations find themselves in municipal traffic court. If they are enroute to some other city, they forfeit bonds and depart.

However, many of these out-of-town drivers leave Sedalia with a bad taste in their mouths. This is not in keeping with Sedalia's long time reputation of being a hospitable city.

Our efficient police department is not to blame for this sad condition. Our officers have a job to do; not a job created by their whims, but a job created by ordinances. Our police perform their duties in a gentleman-like fashion. The blame for this mess lays at the doorsteps of our present mayor and present city councilmen, and the mayors and councilmen of past administrations. Apparently none of these duly elected gentlemen, present or past, have had the courage to tackle the job of simplifying Sedalia's downtown traffic laws.

Sorry, gentlemen, if I consider the truth pinches your toes. Be assured, please, that no personal affront or intent to debase

The Edge

Oh, what before us lies,
Our faith or fears?
As now the old year dies,
The new appears;
We watch each day unfold
And yet we ponder
What will it for us hold
Into the yonder,
Will shadows o'er us fall
Or will the light
Of heaven shine on all
And clear our sight?
Oh, will our hearts go out
To other lands
Our love erase the doubt,
Our out-stretched hands
A gesture to all men
That they may feel
The things we say or pen
Are true and real,
That we are anxious, too,
That they might live
A better life, and do
So want to give Friendship on which that they
Can all depend,
We want to humbly say
"We are your friend"
Days of decision, these,
Where shall they turn,
And will we try to ease
Their plight, or spurn
Their call—for now they weigh
The offers made,
They question what we say
They are afraid,
How challenge shall we face,
The tyranny,
Shall we still hold our place,
As strong and free?
Are we frightened, too,
Or are we sure
God's love in this year new
Will still endure
Shall we wake up to see
Too late their plan,
Or will God's gift yet be
The hope of man?

any political standings are intended.

Now, I must hasten to answer the question you have framed: "What does this amateur traffic consultant (and I wasn't consulted) have to offer to alleviate present confusion involved in downtown driving?"

Hold on to your britches, boys: Here it is:

1. Call the proposal "OPERATION SEDALIA."

2. Make Ohio a one way street, all vehicles to proceed north from Broadway (and other intersections) to Main street.

3. Right and left turns may be made at any and all intersections from Broadway to Main (all Ohio street traffic headed north, of course).

4. Traffic lights that provide some seconds for left turns.

5. Measures to prevent owners, managers and employees of downtown stores and other establishments from hogging parking meters in front of their places from 9 a.m. 'til 5 p.m.

6. Do away with "1 hour for ten cents" meters in certain areas. Use parking meters for control of parking and not just for added city revenues.

7. Fix uniform speed limits in downtown area.

8. Prevent trucks in excess of one-half ton from parking in metered areas except for very brief period of loading or unloading.

9. Center of the street (or nose to nose) parking on Main street at slight angle.

10. Change the name of Main Street to George R. Smith Drive to honor the memory of our city's founder. (Oh boy, shall I buy a one way ticket out of town?)

She mixed up the biscuits, put them in the oven and went on getting the rest of the breakfast ready. Then automatically, she put bread in the toaster, plugged it in, turned off the oven and never thought of the biscuits again until breakfast was over. There they were, still in the oven, and at 10 o'clock that morning she was downtown, and the biscuits were still in the oven. It was just too late to worry about them, then. New Year's Courage

By Ralph W. Loew, D. D.
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

For the New Year, I take courage reading a descriptive sentence concerning the life of Christ.

St. John wrote of Him, "Having loved his own, which were in the world, he loved them unto the end." There is here such a sense of fidelity and confidence, that one is enabled to take up the cause of the New Year hopefully.

If one is realistically attuned to much that is happening and being said and done in these times, there might seem to be little enough reason to wish each other happiness in the new year. Is this mere saccharine sentimentalism or unrealistic optimism?

Yet at the heart of the Christian statement is the fact that we are loved. We may not find all of the joys we once associated with the word "happiness." That isn't the point.

We are loved and in the harsh places of the earth men discover that this can be shared. As Thoreau once said, "God did not send us into the world without spending money."

The basic doctrine of the grace of God is this fidelity of God's goodness. That many of us hold covers over the cups of our lives, receiving none of this grace, does not alter the fact. The whole of life is now lived out in the perspective of this gracious fact. Despite the cruelty of man and the brutality of much that threatens, there is also the persistent faithful-unto-the-end love of God. No man can see the whole of things in this world without seeing this wholeness. "My cup runneth over."

So one of my trusted friends challenged, "You can take your choice. Do you believe that at the heart of things is ugliness, tragedy, and evil — that truth, beauty, goodness are only incidental — or do you believe that these are the center, and that ugliness, tragedy and evil are the violations?"

The Christian faith affirms that he that does good is of God; that this power at the center of things becomes personally available through Jesus Christ; that when this Christ moves a man's life, he is indeed a good man and a free man.

There is something more than optimism in wishing each other happiness for the new year. What the year will bring, none can know. We shall all of us need the mercy of God in any year. But along with this, we desire for one another that happiness that grows from moral strength, from towering imagination and from an enormous hope that comes to those who worship in spirit and in truth.

Why should we expect only the possibility of disaster, evil and terror? Said Jesus, "Behold I stand at the door and knock. If any man open, I will come in and sup with him and he with me." This confident Christ is the same who is described as being faithful unto the end.

Standing on such ground, a man can look at this world, and greet his brothers everywhere with a "Happy New Year."

Moving Ahead — Hodges

Sound Economic Progress Seen During the New Year

By ROBERT E. HENNESSEE
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — "As a whole the new year should be one of sound economic progress."

This is Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges' way of saying that we are moving ahead—but not fast enough.

While in his review of 1961 and forecast for 1962 he sees the economy "advancing on a broad front," it is clear from what he says and the way he says it that all is not rosy.

Certainly, striking advances are being made in the Gross National Product (GNP) which rose from an annual rate of $501 billion in the first quarter of 1961 to a rate of $540 billion during the fourth quarter.

Hodges predicts that by the second quarter of 1962, the GNP should pass the $565 billion mark. While the GNP increase represents very little inflation (about one per cent), it does on the other hand represent a considerable increase in government spending, mostly on defense.

Here are some of the things which Secretary Hodges says happened in 1961:

Consumer purchasing power hit an all-time high.

Corporate profits rose sharply after the first quarter and probably reached the $50 billion annual rate during the fourth quarter.

Industrial production hit a new record.

Retail sales were virtually unchanged from 1960.

However, personal consumption expenditures during the year were some $10 billion higher than in 1960. This rise was attributed to increased purchases of non-durable goods and services. Purchase of durable goods were lower as consumers reduced their purchases of new automobiles by almost 10 per cent.

Business fixed investment trends were mixed. Housing was only slightly above 1960.

Plant and equipment expenditures were slightly below 1960.

Greater spending by federal, state and local governments accounted for about half the increase in the GNP.

Personal income was $15 billion higher than in 1960.

Employment increased, but so did the number available for work; as a result, 1961 saw little change in the unemployment picture, averaging about seven per cent.

Wholesale prices, for the first time since 1953, were lower than the preceding year.

The consumer price index rose one per cent, largely as a result of rising service prices.

The balance of payments problem improved during the first six months but has been deteriorating since mid-summer.

Exports were at record levels.

Imports declined during the first half but began rising the last half.

As for 1962, three significant factors point toward a boom: 1) near record sales of new cars in the late months of 1961; 2) retail purchases set all-time records in November and December; and 3) government spending will continue to increase.

Beware! France Exports The Sloppy, Sleazy Look

By RUTH MILLETT

Now that the fad for wearing jeans low on the hips has about had its run with teen-age boys, fashion designers are trying to get the girls interested in a feminine version of the same sloppy style.

Called the "St. Tropez bikini pants" the feminine (if you can call it that) outfit has the pants cut low (not just worn low) and they depend on a skintight fit for anchorage. Unlike jeans, the St. Tropez pants are bell bottomed—giving them an even sloppier look if possible.

To be worn with the St. Tropez pants the designers have dreamed up a long-sleeved, high-necked shirt chopped off high enough to allow eight or ten inches of bare skin between shirt and pants.

and how little they were, referring to some who had been in a style show.

"I don't know," commented one of the women, "some of them are of the pretty big. Why the other day I was walking down the street behind one and she was so big you couldn't even see me."—H.L.

Let's hope the St. Tropez pants don't catch on with our sweet young things — for if they do no telling what other crazy fads from St. Tropez will follow.

If you've ever sat at a sidewalk cafe in St. Tropez since Brigitte Bardot's crowd turned that little fishing village on the Riviera into a beatnik side show you know what an endless variety of weird costumes could come out of the place.

They are startling enough in a beatnik hangout — worn by girls who do nothing to their hair but let it grow and dye it strange colors, but just think how those Tropez outfits will look on high school girls and housewives, running around neighborhood shopping centers.

Paris has, from time to time, foisted some pretty unbecoming "new" looks on us. But heaven help us if we start following the "fashion" line as dreamed up by the stringy-haired beatniks of St. Tropez.

Army Bands Work for Military Wives

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — There's long been a controversy inside the Armed Forces over whether the military bands should play for dinners, dances and debutante parties for military wives and other social functions. The controversy at times has been almost as heated as the arguments over the Reserves, the National Guard, and the Army-Navy football game.

At first, forthright Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara tried to clamp down on military music for social functions. His advisers argued that if you hire the piper you should pay for him.

But during the recent Christmas season, the wives of the Army brass appear to have won out. The Secretary of Defense, busy with budget headaches, appears to have retreated.

When the Defense Department's office of special activities was queried regarding the question of who was entitled to get free military music and who wasn't, Maj. Helen Steir explained:

"Officers' wives fit into the category authorizing service bands to play at official occasions and free social and entertainment activities conducted exclusively for the benefit of the Armed Services and their guests."

Major Steir was asked whether the following Army band engagements were covered by this category:

The string trio that played for two hours for the Inspector General wives luncheon at Fort McNair officers club on Nov. 16;

The 27-man chorus that sang a 30-minute Christmas program for the Army daughters at the Army-Navy Town Club Dec. 4;

The five-man dance combo that played for one hour for the War College Women's Club luncheon at Fort McNair officers club on December 6;

The 32-man chorus that sang a half-hour program for the Fort Myer Women's Club at Patton Hall, Fort Myer, Dec. 7;

The 26-man chorus that sang a half-hour program for the Officers' Wives Club Christmas program at Vint Hill Farms officers club on Dec. 12.

Major Steir insisted with some heat that all of the above were covered by military authorization. She seemed to be quite familiar with defense order 5410.6 which prohibits Armed Services musicians from playing at unofficial functions — even if so ordered by their superiors.

"How do you justify the 25-man Army band's playing for one hour at American University homecoming celebrating Dec. 9?" she was asked.

"Recruiting," snapped Major Steir.

Recruiting also was the explanation for the 45-man band that played three hours at the Washington-Lee high school football game Nov. 25.

"Were you recruiting at the Corcoran Art Gallery for two hours with the Army 35-man band on Nov. 17?" Major Steir was asked.

Also, how about the 50-man orchestra, strings, and chorus that played three and one-half hours for civilian aid at the Fort Monroe, Va., officers club on Dec. 5; also the 29-man chorus that sang half an hour for the American Legion Middle Atlantic Conference at the Emerson Hotel in Baltimore on Dec. 8; also the 30- and 50-man bands that played at the National Institutes of Health on Nov. 16 and Dec. 14?

"Write me a letter," commanded Major Steir.

Courtesy To A Lady???

Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, a very proper Bostonian, is in an agony of indecision over good manners. His problem is: Should he be gracious to a lady? The lady is charming, white-haired Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, his colleague on the Armed Services Committee.

When Sen. Styles Bridges died, Saltonstall moved up the ladder of seniority to the coveted spot of ranking Republican on the powerful Appropriations Committee. He is also top GOP on the Armed Services Committee, with Mrs. Smith ranking just below. Sitting as he is in both potent pews, Salty has been strangely silent about rising and graciously asking Mrs. Smith to take the top Republican position on the Armed Services Committee. One reason is discreet opposition from the Pentagon about letting the independent lady from Maine get more power over the military.

Generals on whose toes Mrs. Smith has daintily but firmly stepped don't want her in a position of power. They remember all too vividly how she held up the promotion of Jimmy Stewart, the movie actor, to be a Brigadier General in the Air Force Reserve and frowned on other promotions until satisfied they were completely justified.

If, however, the Republicans ever get control of the Senate — which, the Generals sigh, won't be likely soon — Mrs. Smith would probably become chairman of the Armed Services Committee. She would be the first woman in history to so preside.

Pen Signing Law Creating Patrol To Special Case

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — April 24, 1931, then Gov. Henry S. Caulfield dipped a pen in a bottle of ink and signed a bill into law. It created Missouri's highway patrol.

Caulfield gave the pen, still wet, to Ed Duensing, the Republican representative from Lafayette County whose dream of a state patrol finally came true after three previous unsuccessful efforts. Duensing kept the memento.

It was just a common sort of pen—a wooden shaft with a hard rubber grip and a steel point. It was the sort of pen youngsters had to use back in those days to practice their penmanship. The kind that often dripped. But it meant a lot to Duensing.

Thursday, the 76-year-old former legislator who lives in retirement here gave the pen to Col. Hugh H. Waggoner, superintendent of the patrol which now has an authorized strength of 505 officers and men. Duensing's brother, George Duensing, present state representative from Lafayette County, was on hand for the presentation.

Waggoner said a special case will be obtained to hold the pen, the original bill and other mementos of the patrol's establishment more than 30 years ago.

Named assistant cashiers were Stanley Andrews, who was manager of the accounting department; John N. Blair, manager of the check collection department; and Ted Brauning, manager of the discount credit department.

Oil Official Predicts Gas Tax to Pass

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — An oil industry official predicted Thursday night the gasoline tax sharing plan will pass because of broad popular support.

The prediction came from John R. Hahn, public affairs secretary for the Missouri Oil Council. He made it in a speech prepared for a meeting of the Central Missouri Gasoline Retailers Association.

"There has never been a program with such a wide base of support," Hahn said.

"I happen to think that the reason for this support is that the program grew from the grass roots. Some folks in politics say you can't beat city hall. I say you can't beat the people and I think this amendment is going to pass."

The plan to make the present five-cent gas tax permanent and share one cent of the revenue with cities and counties comes up at a special election March 6. Hahn urged the gasoline retailers to intensify their campaign efforts between now and then.

He estimated the increase in the state tax will give the state highway department $64 million in gas tax revenue, an increase of $16 million a year.

At the same time, he said, cities over 200 will receive $12 million a year for city streets from their three-fourths of a cent revenue and city gas taxes will be abolished.

Counties will get about $4 million a year for county roads from their fourth of a cent. That is about $1,350 more a year than counties now get in state aid under the King road plan.

An important fringe benefit, Hahn said, is that about $5,300,000 a diennium in general revenue, now being spent on the King road plan, will be freed for other state purposes. He suggested that might be enough to make it unnecessary for the next legislature to raise other taxes.

Antoine Gizenga Answer Charges Of Secessionism

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — A humbled Antoine Gizenga reversed himself Thursday and promised to heed a parliamentary summons to answer charges of secessionism. He telegraphed the promise from Stanleyville, his old stamping ground 775 miles north-east of this city.

An authoritative source said the Communist-backed deputy premier knuckled under only after trying and failing Wednesday to get his Stanleyville police to arrest Congolese Gen. Victor Lundula and members of a U.N. commission investigating the Kinshasa massacre.

Official reports from Stanleyville said the police were confused and divided and returned to their barracks without carrying out his orders. The commissioners were not molested.

The Kinshasa case involves the slaughter of 13 Italian U.N. airmen last November by drunken soldiers of a regiment nominally loyal to Gizenga. So far all have gone unpunished.

Lundula, once a supporter of Gizenga, has pledged loyalty to the central government of Premier Cyrille Adoula.

By a vote of 66-10, Parliament ordered Gizenga to return within 48 hours to take up the Leopoldville post he abandoned last fall.

field by E. Lyn Crowley and C. Lee Overly, and other assistants, who will perform the local survey work. Their initial job will be to prepare maps showing the location of all buildings which appear to offer a substantial degree of protection from radioactive fallout for a minimum of 50 people.

The State Civil Defense director has requested all officials in the area who are contacted by the architect-engineers to cooperate in the expedited gathering of information for the program. The engineers will carry authentic identification issued by the Corps of Engineers. Detailed plans of structures will, where available, be most helpful to the engineers in determining suitability of the structure for the purpose.

The latest methods for data gathering will be used and the information will be assembled on special forms so that electronic data processing machines can extract necessary answers quickly and accurately. After all the information is obtained, the second phase will be the marking of such buildings which the computer indicates as satisfactory. Other phases of the program, such as interior markings, development of an overall shelter use plan, and provisioning of shelters will come at a later date.

Government representatives stated that other areas in the state are expected to be included in the Shelter Program Survey as quickly as contracts can be made.

to admit it was "bad." He said her request was made several days before her husband was shot.

It was after a 10-day trial last June that Mrs. Kinne was acquitted of first degree murder in the slaying of Mrs. Patricia Jones, 23, whose husband had been dating Mrs. Kinne. Mrs. Jones was found shot to death in a remote area east of Independence. The murder weapon, a .22-caliber pistol, never was found.

The state sought to prove that the last time Mrs. Jones was reported alive she was seen entering Mrs. Kinne's car.

Will Speak At Kennedy Dinner

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson and former President Harry S. Truman will speak Jan. 20 at a $100-a-plate dinner marking the first anniversary of President Kennedy's inauguration, it was announced today.

Rep. Thomas M. Pelly, R-Wash., said the idea "makes me shudder—it is an open-end invitation for a tax cut before every major election, whether justified or not."

The Republicans were supported on this point by Sen. Harry F. Byrd, Virginia Democrat who often opposes Kennedy measures. Byrd, chairman of the tax-handling Senate Finance Committee, said he would fight not only the tax-cut authority but also the President's request for a standby public works program to fight recessions. He said he feels both "would be in fundamental violation of the Constitution."

Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., usually an administration supporter, said "I would have to be convinced" of the wisdom of the executive tax-cutting authority.

Sen. Paul Douglas, D-Ill., on the other hand, said he feels executive tax-cutting, with adequate safeguards, would be sound. He indicated he personally might favor giving the President authority to raise taxes temporarily, too, but acknowledged this might encounter constitutional objections not applicable to tax-cutting.

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., the Senate majority leader, said the message has the mark of greatness and "points the way, first, to what must be done at home for the progress of all our citizens. On that base, it plots a course of national leadership for the advance of peace and freedom in the world."

The Republican Senate leader, Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, said the tax-cut proposal and other Kennedy requests for added authority "will make the New Frontier blaze with controversy." He added that the message as a whole resembles "a Sears Roebuck catalog with the old prices marked up."

Rep. Charles A. Halleck, the Republican House leader, said he couldn't be "as glowing in my appraisal of the State of the Union" as Kennedy was. Halleck then charged the administration with failure to solve unemployment and the farm problem and with unclosed foreign policies in such places as Cuba, Laos and Viet Nam.
